The barrel is octagonal and was hand-finished by 'bluins' - a special colonial treatment.

It took Mr. Hamilton 4 months in his spare time to build his rifle-an estimated 100 hours total. Mr. Hamilton plans to build another gun in the future, possibly a flintlock plains gun.

The second 'craftsman' was actually a craftswoman - Mrs. Harry Boozer. Her colonial craft is hooking rugs.

Mrs. Boozer says she took up the hobby to pass time, but she has turned out 57 rugs in the past 20 years -quite a number considering the method she uses.

When making a rug, she uses burlap as a foundation and hooks pieces of old clothing into a pattern on that base. Most of her patterns have been her own, although she admits to using other patterns.

Mrs. Boozer got started in rug hooking 20 years ago when she watched a neighbor doing it.

The large rug in the picture won 1st prize in the annual community exhibit for rug hooking. Two other rugs won 2d and 4th place in the Harrisburg state fair.
