Wyeth helps snakebite victim

Wyeth in Marietta recently received an emergency call for Antivenin, (North and South American Antisnakebite Serum). The antisnakebite serum was needed by the Williamsport PA Hospital to treat a middle aged male patient. The patient, a professional snake handler, was bitten by a Rattlesnake during a demonstration at a school in Williamsport.

In response to the call for Antivenin, which was received at 8:30 a.m., arrangements were made with local and state police and delivery was made to the hospital before 12 noon. A PA State Police helicopter was used to transport the Antivenin most of the distance involved.

The patient was released from the Intensive Care Unit of the hospital on Sunday, May 9, 1976.
