

PEOPLE SAY THE SWEETEST THINGS TO STEAL YOUR MONEY.

Some people make a living talking other people out of their money. They're sweet talkers. They're very good at it. And they could be anybody.

How can you spot them? The tip-off is that they'll always get around to asking you for money. No matter how convincing their reasons may be, learn to say the safest word you know. "No!"

Here's an example. It's the "bless your money" swindle. A charming stranger offers to "bless" your money in order to remove a curse or to perform some type of ritual which will increase its value. You are asked to withdraw cash from your account. In the process of handling your money the stranger excuses herself for a moment. She's gone and so is your money.

There's only one thing to say to a swindler: "No!"

Eichler's spent vacation doing God's work

by Hazel Baker

A Mount Joy family volunteered 12 days of its vacation time to join 80 social workers giving service in the Dominican Republic of Central America.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Eichler, R.D.#1, Mount Joy, flew with their three children from Philadelphia airport to San Domingo, changed planes and then landed in the "Republic".

The group stayed at "la Tosado," the summer home of a former dictator, and worked with the Christian Medical Society.

Twelve members of the group traveled 100 miles inland with a portable surgical van. Operations were performed at a small fee if the patient could afford to pay. Clinics were set up at the churches where natives come for consultation. Included in the adult-teen work group were two surgeons, a pediatrician, dentists, dentist surgeon, nine registered nurses, LPNs and students.

Volunteers did such work as painting public health demonstrations, spiritual guidance, driving vehicles, and assisting at an orphanage.

Franklin Eichler is an accountant with Sico Company. His wife Patricia is a nurse with Elizabethtown Area School District.

Victoria, their daughter, is a sophomore at Millersville State College where she is majoring in social work. LuAnn graduated from Donegal High School and Mount Joy Vo-Tech School this year from the floriculture course. David, the youngest member of the family, is a freshman at Donegal High School where he participates in the band.

This is the third trip for Frank and Pat but the first for their children. Pat heard about the program from a supervisor at General Hospital who spoke to the women's group at Glossbrenner United Methodist Church.
