

A New Concept In Home Building...

for people planning to purchase an electrically heated home

Saving energy and money is important these days and will be even more important in the future. That's why PP&L is introducing the "Energy Efficient Home Program." Working with participating builders, PP&L has established standards of home construction for such things as insulation and sheathing . . . windows and doors . . . water heating . . . ventilation . . . plus home heating and cooling which includes the modern electric heat pump.

Heating and Cooling in one efficient and compact unit

Chances are, you've heard about heat pumps lately. And for good reason. In cold weather this unique system actually "extracts heat" from outside air to heat your home. In summer, the process is reversed and heat is "pumped" from inside your home to cool it. The result? Clean, quiet and dependable comfort, year-round.

Installing a heat pump and air distribution system today will provide you with many options for the future, too. For example, solar energy equipment or a fuel-fired furnace can be combined with the heat pump to expand your future energy options and help keep your heating costs at a minimum.

That's why, if you're thinking of a new electrically heated home, it'll pay you to look for one that qualifies for the Energy-Efficient Home Award. It's your assurance that you'll be getting the most practical energy-saving features in home building today.

If your builder is not familiar with the requirements of an Energy Efficient Home, call PP&L.
