ber of toys for sale in the stores, which almost seemed to outnumber any other items. "They believe in their youth," she told us.

Chris was also impressed by the honesty of the Russian people, if not by the honesty of their officials (who evaded all questions). "You could leave your valuables anywhere and not worry about them being taken."

Everywhere they went in the U.S.S.R. the group was accosted by Russians gesturing and saying "Goom! Goom!" — meaning chewing gum. Gum is unavailable in the Soviet Union. People would trade anything they had, even their belt buckles, for it.

The group also visited Holland, where Chris saw a dairy farm which impressed her as a "beautiful operation." Farmers in Holland don't live on their farms, she found, but in nearby towns.

In Switzerland Chris and her friends had a snowball fight in the Alps, which she says are bigger and more beautiful than the Rockies. She also stayed in a convent in Belgium.

The last stop was England, where "it was great to hear English again." One girl got into an embarrassing situation by commenting on a woman's unshaved legs. She forgot that everyone could understand her.

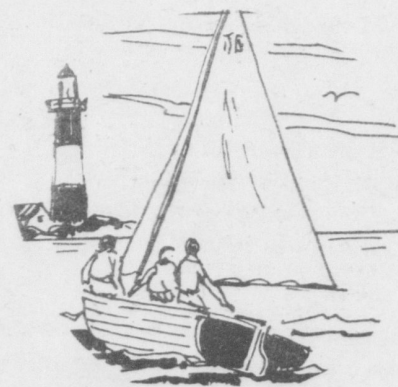

Chris brought back 400 slides and many memories. Will she go back some day?

"I'm thinking of missionary work in the underdeveloped nations," she said. "I'd like to see some of them. If I go back to Europe I think I'd go by myself and visit England, Holland, and Switzerland again. I have friends there now who I could stay with."

DID YOU HEAR...

The Maytown branch of the Union National Mount Joy Bank has an interesting display of quaint antiques related to banking, including a booklet by Calvin Coolidge, saying how important it is to have a large savings account.

It was 1898 . . .

And in that year Teddy Roosevelt charges up San Juan Hill with the Rough Riders, and the Spanish American War ends in December. "After the Ball is Over" has become the century's big musical hit, Lillian Russell is making movies and William Jennings Bryan is making headlines striving to become president.

The same year Almon B. Strowger, an undertaker who invented the first dial telephone because he feared telephone operators had been routing calls to his competitors, produces this dial telephone. Strowger's first subscriber-dialed telephone exchange had begun operation in 1892 in his hometown of La Porte, Indiana.

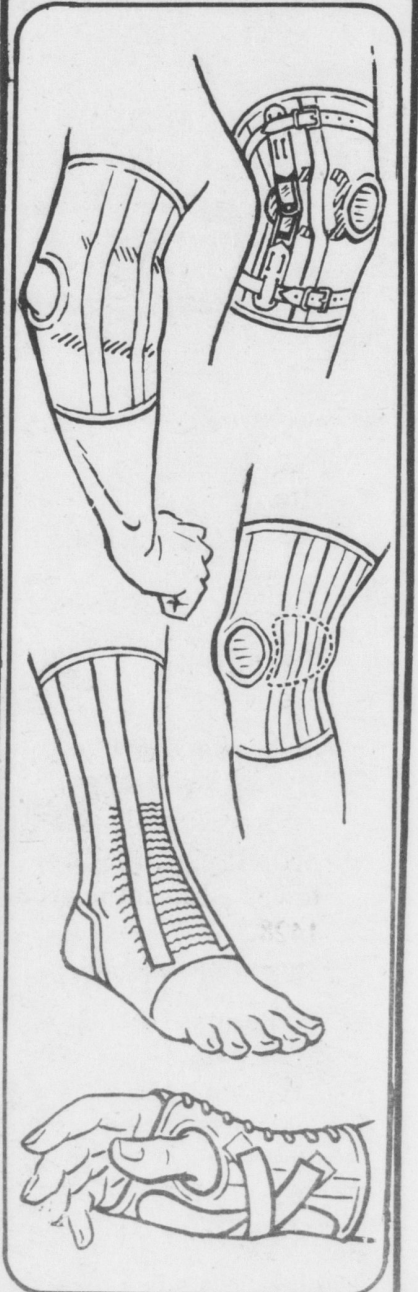

Today many Americans accept their telephone system, the world's largest and most efficient dialing system, as common place.
