

Christmas safety tips; look out for "angel hair," artificial snow

The holiday season is approaching and with it the anticipation of the gifts it will bring, the decorating of Christmas trees, the baking of sugar cookies and all of the things that make Christmas a special time of joy for children.

Preparing for the holiday can result in last minute details, such as decorating the home, that are taken care of hurriedly. The Lancaster Association for the Blind urges everyone to practice safety measures when decorating for the holiday.

The decorating of the Christmas tree should always be supervised by an adult. In homes with small children, take special care to avoid trimmings that are: sharp or breakable; have small removable parts resemble candy or food. If using spun glass "ang. Hair" wear gloves so the material does not irritate the skin. Even with gloves, avoid any contact of the angel hair with the eyes. Artificial snow sprays can irritate the lungs if inhaled and can harm the eyes. To avoid injury, read container labels and follow directions carefully. Most important, keep spray cans out of children's reach. They cannot be expected to read instructions or head written warnings. "Bubbling lights" should also be kept away from children because their bright colors and bubbling movement can tempt curious children to break them and attempt to drink the liquid which contains a dangerous chemical.

By taking a few moments out of your busy schedule to practice these safety measures, you can help to make your family's Christmas the happiest ever.

For more information about safety in the home, contact the Lancaster Association for the Blind, 506 West Walnut Street, Lancaster, PA 17603.

Mrs. Francis Greiner displays art at library in Mount Joy

Mrs. Francis Griener of Mount Joy is displaying some of her Christmas Creche at the Mount Joy Library this month. She uses sissors, toothpicks, and glue for this type of work. Besides the Creche, Mrs. Griener also works with other materials such as oil and acralic. She has been with the arts for 9 years. She teaches at Y.M.C.A. and Provident Bookstore.
