Citizens' Advisory compares E.Q.A.'s

On Wednesday, January 19, 1977 the Long Range Planning Citizen's Advisory Council of the Donegal School District met in the Riverview library.

The group concerned itself with comparing the results of the needs assessment which was conducted in March of 1976 with the Educational Quality Assessment which was administered in 1974. The E.Q.A. was handled by the Pennsylvania Department of Education and was given to grades 5, 8 and 11.

While the two surveys clearly showed various needs, it appeared that the greatest priority was that of communications with both staff and community.

Other concerns listed in priority order were: Accountability; Buildings; Academics; Organizational Structure; Materials and Supplies; Cultural Pursuits and Extra-curricular.

The advisory council is made up of representatives from various groups from within the school and the community.

The group is charged with the responsibility of making recommendations to the school board concerning future district long range planning.

In attendance at the meeting were:

Mrs. Joanne Mengel - Right to Read; Mrs. Gloria Straub - Band Parents; Mrs. Brenda Musser - Grandview PTO; Mr. Pat Kenny - Lancaster County Human Relations and Mr. James Leshner - Title I.

Mr. Morrell Shields - Donegal Elementary Schools; Mr. Jack Loose - Donegal Secondary Schools; Mr. Ragnar Hallgren - Donegal Superintendent; Mr. James Lawrence - Donegal Principal and Mr. John Sauter - Director of Long Range Planning.

Penn State exhibit on blacks in Revolution

Penn State-Capitol Campus proudly announces the exhibition of "The Black Presence in the Era of the American Revolution, 1770 - 1800." The exhibit is circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

Forty handsome exhibit panels tell the story of blacks during this period by presenting their portraits and deeds in pictures and words—as soldier and sailor, founder of the black church, fighter for equality, organizer of school, lodge, and society; as scientist, writer poet, artist, captain, physician, frontiersman, and rebel.

This special exhibition is open to the public free of charge.

Math Scholarship test

Elizabethtown College's Department of Mathematics is conducting a competitive examination on Saturday, Feb. 19, to award four mathematics scholarships at the school.

According to Robert K. Morse, associate professor of mathematics, all high school juniors and seniors may take the test, which will be administered from 2 to 4 p.m. in 362 Esben-shade Hall on the campus. Interested students need only call the mathematics department secretary at 367-1151, Ext. 386, and leave their names, addresses and telephone numbers, he said.

The College is offering four scholarships, two at $300 and two at $200.

Following the examination, which is expected to be an annual competition, interested students and their parents are invited to tour the campus, have dinner and attend a basketball game as guests of the math department, Morse said.
