No shortage of oil or electricity here

The current natural-gas and fuel oil shortages have not yet affected local electric companies and oil suppliers.

"PP&L at this time has adequate capacity to supply electrical customers in its service areas," PP&L executive vice-president Brooke R. Hartman said.

He added, however, the the Company recognizes the problems occurring as a result of fuel shortages in other areas, and it is endorsing compliance with the requests of Governor Shapp and President Carter for conservation measures.

PP&L is watching for the possible effect on electrical loads of a switchover to electric space heaters due to shortages of other fuels. Hartman pointed out that PP&L has been endorsing energy conservation since the early 1970's and believes that energy conservation must be an ongoing way of life. "Conservation must continue until such time as the nation formulates a long-term energy policy which can adequately deal with the increasing demand for all forms of energy to preserve our economic health as a nation," he concluded.

Several local fuel oil suppliers told this newspaper that they anticipate no shortages.

"Foreign Food Fest"

A "Foreign Food Fest" to be held Saturday, May 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller, 111 Fairview Avenue, Marietta, was planned at the monthly meeting of the Marietta Auxiliary to the Columbia Hospital at the home of Ruth Wisman. Mrs. Joseph Gilmartin, president, conducted the business meeting. The group considered the possibility of holding a spring card party benefit. Mrs. George Houseal would chair the benefit.

Tentative plans call for an "international food market." Food and wines from various countries of the world will be served. Rain date will be May 8th.

The February 14, meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Youtz.

Katie Carroll creates a complex tapestry

Katie Carroll

Katie Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert

Carroll, N. Market St., Marietta, has completed a complex needle point wall hanging as a school crafts project. Thirty dollars worth of yarn and months of work went into the design.

Miss Carroll's brother, Mike, is refinishing a frame for the wall hanging.

Katie Carroll, a senior, is president of the Spanish Club at DHS. She is also a member of the senior executive committee, the Yearbook staff, and Junior Achievement.
