

...more on genuine Susquehanna River ice cream

Joe and Ed made ice cream with river ice when they were kids. They are carrying on the tradition with their own families. Their wives have become expert ice cream mixers.

The formula for home-made vanilla Susquehanna River ice cream goes like this:

- 2½ cups sugar
  - 4 eggs
  - 3 tablespoons vanilla
  - 1 or 2 cans of milk
  - 1 quart of Joe Wivell's milk
- Mix ingredients in an ice cream maker. Pack river ice and salt around the mixture, and start cranking.

(The Portners use Wivell's milk because "He's got good-looking cows." You can use another farmer's milk, but remember, it isn't Susquehanna River ice cream if you don't use Susquehanna River ice.)

Dwayne (left) and Deane (right) attack a burlap bag full of Susquehanna River ice. The ice must be finely crushed, or the ice cream maker will jam.
