Race for Mayor

There isn't much of a race for mayor of Mount Joy—James Gingrich is running unopposed. In Marietta the situation is different.

Jay Robert Flanagan, Sr., and Harold J. "Brosie" Kulman, both Republicans, are battling it out. Since no Democrat is running for Marietta mayor, the winner of the May 17th primary is a shoe-in for the office when elections are held next fall.

Mr. Flanagan, appointed to mayor when Barney McDevitt resigned last March 10th, is the incumbent.

While ex-mayor McDevitt described his old office's duties as being "mostly a figure-head," the mayor does have responsibilities. The main one is supervising the police force and acting as negotiator between them, the council, and the public. The mayor also has veto power on new ordinances (like the U.S. President's veto on new bills from Congress), and he can cast the deciding vote in case of a tie vote in council.

Again like the U.S. President, the mayor has prestige. If he proposes an ordinance, the council is likely to consider it. This intangible factor adds to his power.

Jay Robert Flanagan, Sr.

Jay Robert Flanagan, Sr. stated in an interview that his main concern is stricter enforcement of ordinances such as the speeding laws. He also wants to work for closer cooperation between the police and the council.

In addition to the above, Mr. Flanagan indicated that he has plans for an anti-litter campaign. No details are immediately available. He also is thinking of a drug abuse program.

Mr. Flanagan wants to set up seminars at River-view at which Marietta policemen would meet local children, somewhat like the monthly programs at Zion school.

When asked why he is running, he answered, "because I enjoy it, and it's a challenge."

Mr. Flanagan has served one term as councilman, and one term as president of council.

He works at Wyeth Labs, is married and the father of two sons. He was born in Bainbridge, served in the U.S. Navy, and is a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Lutheran Church.

Harold V. Kulman

Mr. Kulman is running an aggressive campaign, and he hopes to be a dynamic mayor.

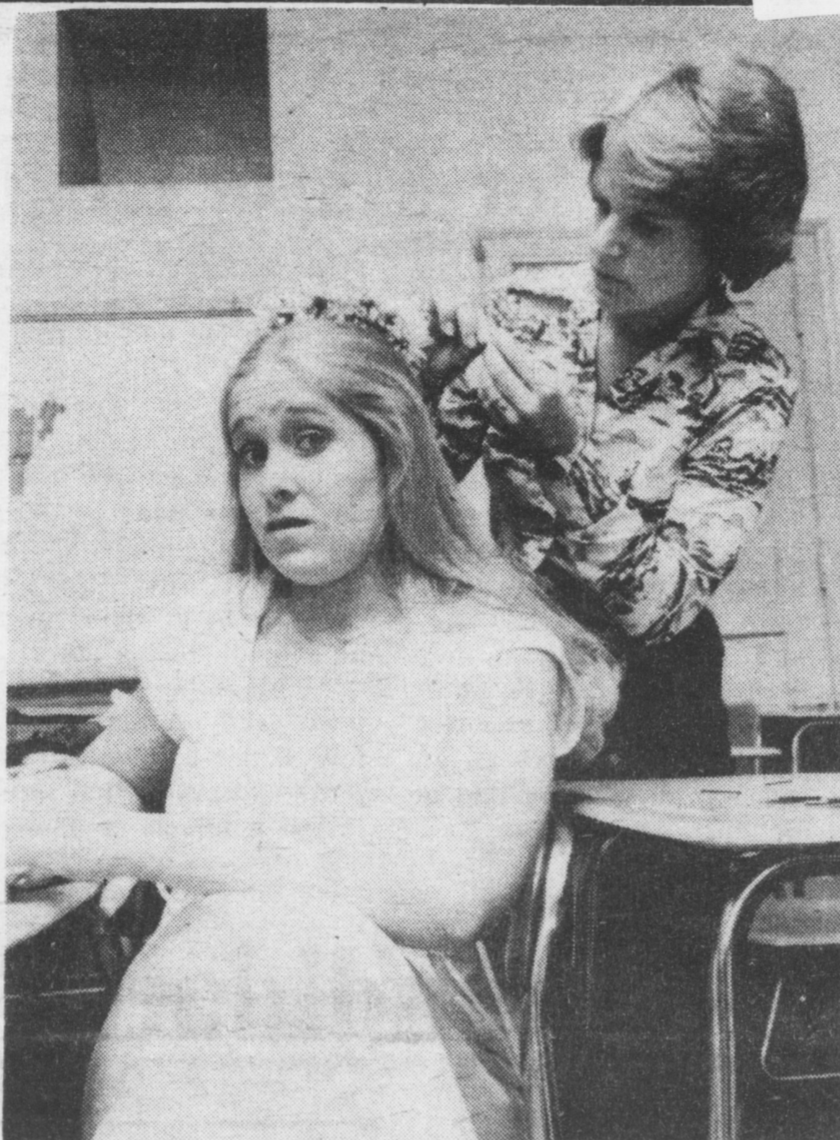

Among the many projects he mentioned in an interview last week, the one he is most interested in is a public opinion poll. If elected, he would like to

Sally Goodhart wins

Sally Goodhart was the winner of the Monday night drawing for two free tickets to Hershey Park in the Susquehanna Times office.

Sally lives at 4544 Miller Dr. in Mount Joy R.D. 3. Congratulations Sally!

Ex-Queen Lori Thomas gets a final touch-up from her sister Deb minutes before the Beahm May Queen contest. If you think she looks nervous, you should have seen the other girls—they were competing! Story on page 13.

Why is this man angry? Or is he angry? Maybe he's just trying to drive his wife, whom he is shaking, to nervous breakdown ... she's already on the edge. But then, he's having an affair with the nurse ... Hmmm! Don Kelly and Allison Hawthorne in a scene from Night Watch, coming soon to DHS. For more prevues, see page 9.

Just clowning around?

"Life is somewhat of a stage, and with the present great depression we all need a little clowning around," says Evening of Entertainment's director, Alan Szymanski.

With this thought in mind, Alan decided to start the Evening with the song "Send in the Clowns." And of course, clowns.

The clowns will not only introduce the show, but circulate around the stage and audience as well. Alan hopes that they will contribute to the upbeat, fast-paced variety of acts and musical selections.

"The show is not a true collage," explains Alan, "but it's a rapid succession of individual performers, who are the heart of the show. We have many very talented people lined up."

Alan also told us that he is bringing in a sound engineer from WITF-TV in Hershey, who will "equip DHS as it never has been equipped before."

Don't miss it.
