Ressler, Inc. of Mountville, officially opened its new metal fabrication facility at 111 New St., Mount Joy, with a ribbon-cutting ceremony on Saturday, May 7.

Miss Pennsylvania, Marie McLaughlin, and Robert J. Ressler, President of the firm, were on hand to cut the ribbon at the new site. Also participating in the program were State Senator Clarence Manbeck, Mount Joy mayor Jim Gingrich, John Hoffman, president, Union National Mount Joy Bank, and Lee Ellis, general manager of the Mount Joy operation.

Ressler, Inc. previously had its metal fabrication operation based at Mountville, where the corporate headquarters and general offices of the firm are also located. However, the company elected to move the metal fabrication operation to the New Mount Joy site in order to enlarge fabrication capabilities and offer an ever-widening range of services to its customers.

According to Ellis, Ressler, Inc., of Mount Joy, will be involved in heavy gauge metal fabrication, including anti-pollution control devices such as scrubbers and dust collectors. In addition, the office will do contract fabrication for any industry who has products they sublet for fabrication.

Currently, 20 employees are at work at the Mount Joy facility. When it is at full strength in a few weeks, the operation will employ about 75 persons. The Ressler, Inc. building houses two floors of offices and metal fabrication shop (a total of 9,000 square feet of space). The site also has an employee parking lot.

Ressler, Inc., is a full service mechanical contractor specializing in plumbing, heating, air conditioning, sheet metal, heavy gauge steel fabrication, and energy-management systems. In addition to the Mountville home office, the company has specialty service branches in East Petersburg, Columbia, Harrisburg and now Mount Joy.
