The Red Rose Transit Authority recently designated July 2 as "RRTA Dime Time". On that day all one-way RRTA bus trips will operate at a charge of only 10 cents to transit patrons. "Dime Time" is part of RRTA's experimental program of reduced bus fares. Titled "Red Rose Rebates", the program is designed to build system ridership by periodically offering bus service at greatly reduced rates. The date for "Dime Time" was selected to coincide with the July Fourth holiday weekend. As part of a series of "fare deals" for the people of Lancaster, "Dime Time" is RRTA's contribution to Lancaster's celebration of our nation's birthday.

In order to accommodate "Dime Time's" larger numbers and to avoid crowding, RRTA plans to place extra buses on routes that will be used heavily. The extent of public response to RRTA "Dime Time" will determine whether or not another "Red Rose Rebate" will be planned for the future.
