School auction like the real thing

by Pat Bateman

To end the school year on a favorable note, and as a culminating activity to many of the units they had studied, Mrs. Bateman's first grade class at Maytown Elementary School held on auction the morning of Tuesday, June 14th. The day began with a visit to the registration tables operated by Mrs. Jeanette Ruth and Mrs. Judy Wilson where each child registered to receive his bidding number. They were then free to browse through the sale items and purchase refreshments with the dittoed currency they had earned over the month of May. That booth was operated by Mrs. Myers and some first graders who were gaining knowledge.

Auctioneer Harold Keller lent his services for the sale and was successful selling all of the items. He did admit however that it was an adjustment to deal in just "Pennies and nickels. His sense of humor held the interest of the class as they bid on classroom items using authentic number cards. When the bidding was over each child was responsible for paying for the purchased items at the registration tables. We discovered that only two children over spent their amount and that the auction made over $30.00. The auction was well attended by parents and faculty.

Children's film festival

The film festival is part of a children's literature course offered by the humanities program and taught by Dr. Robert Graham, associate professor of humanities.

Among the films will be classics such as "The Story of Cinderella," "The Owl and the Pussycat," and "White Mane." More recent films include: "Neighbors," "Insects," "Orange and Blue," "Home of the White Storks," "The Magic Tree," and "Circus."

The festival, according to Dr. Robert Graham, includes animated films, documentaries, abstract art and non-verbal films. "Most films appeal to children from 4 to 10. However," Graham commented, "older children frequently find them enjoyable."
