

Funtime Fashions

These outfits from the Orange Owl were featured at last week's Funtime Fashions show, sponsored by the Mount Joy Joyce-ettes. At left, Joi Shearer wears a 100% Quiana dress with matching suede vest. At center, Pat Wolf wears a multicolor seamless vest, Polly brushed pant and shirt. At right, Gloria Logenecker wears a mushroom colored long permanent press dress with bolero jacket.

photo by Tim Swarr

Need a Better Apartment Deal? All Utilities Included

Enjoy:

- *Fully equipped kitchen
- *Central air and heat
- *Washer/dryer
- *Private entrance and patio

Friendly neighbors and management—
all in a small apartment community

Harvestview Apartments
Mount Joy Phone 653-2328

Arline Steckbeck

Beauty Skoppe

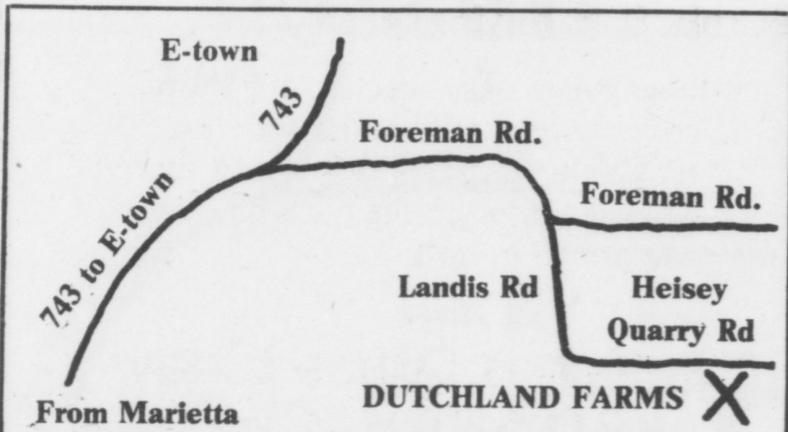

is pleased to announce

DEBRA MC KAIN

as an operator

Call 653-5937 Mount Joy

DUTCHLAND FARMS EGG OUTLET

COUPON

25c off any one dozen eggs

Good only at Dutchland Farms

367-7227 Rheems, Pa.

These kids not only like to play tennis: they like to make money. Left to right; Marc, Michael, Matthew.

Teaches kids to play; loses $100

Lee Ranck, the former Mount Joy resident, was number one tennis player on the old Mount Joy High School tennis team in the '40s, and still plays the game —with his three sons.

Ranck, who now lives in Bowie, MD, a suburb of Washington, DC, has taught his sons to play so well that they not only all finished in the finals at a local tennis tournament, but have cost him

$100 —he promised $50 to any of his offspring who could beat him at the game, and so far two sons, Michael and Matthew, have collected on the rash wager.

Michael is 16, and Matthew is 12. The other son, Marc, is only 9, but is progressing fast (he is in his first year of tennis, but did well at the tournament) and soon the elder Ranck may be out another $50.

"Now Marc has those dollar signs in his eyes, too," Lee says, and then adds wistfully, "but I hope he has a few years to go."

Lee, who works as editor of resources for the United Methodist Board of Church and Society, finds that playing regularly with his boys "Helps keep me from succumbing to the aging process." After two of his three sons defeated him (Matthew beat him on 4 other occasions as well) he was forced to admit that youthful reflexes tend to fade.

Note: Lee Ranck is the son of Dr. Ezra H. Ranck, longtime pastor of St. Mark's United Methodist Church in Mount Joy, who is now retired and living in the Harvestview Apartments.

The Times wishes to thank Dr. Ranck for his well-written article, which this one was based on.

Mount Joy Borough Authority meets

Joseph Bateman, Mount Joy Borough Manager, reported to the Authority members on the condition of Charles Springs, the main water supply for Mount Joy. He said that without "substantial rainfall soon," the spring could reach a critical stage, at which time residents would be asked to curtail use of water.

In other business, the board was denied a request for extra funding from the DER to cover the legal expenses and costs of a value engineering study. Funding for the study could have been approved, had the Authority received that approval prior to the beginning of the project.

Smoke testing of sewer lines in the borough has been completed. The tests have shown where excessive inflow of about 30,000 gallons per day is going into the sewer system. This inflow, it was found, is coming from 28 sources throughout the borough, mainly from cellar drains, downspouts, etc.

Bateman reported a test will begin shortly at private wells in the East Donegal Township area to show the effect, if any, on the water tables after the new pumping station begins operations. This test is required by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission.

According to Robert A. Stark, engineer, the standpipe at Rapho Industrial Park is ready for painting and testing.

"Everything is on schedule and in good order," he said.

A concern of the Authority is a 12 inch water main on the now barricaded Lumber Street bridge.

There is, according to Bateman, a possibility that the bridge will be demolished and the borough Authority would then have to construct a carrier for the main line. A foot bridge for pedestrians would probably be included in the project, estimated at $50,000.

Mount Joy Supervisors meet

Bailey reports $3,329,000 grant to sewers system

Charles Bailey, chairman of the Mount Joy Township Sewer Authority, had good news for the Supervisors: the requested EPA grant has come through, to the tune of $3,329,000.00.

According to Bailey, the Authority will formally accept the grant at its September 27th meeting. Approximately 60 days after the acceptance of the funding, they expect to go to bids.

The grant is part of a $5.22 million project. The balance of the funding will come from the $790,000 FMHA grant and a loan of $1.3 million at 5% for 40 years. Bailey said a $300 tap-on fee was requested by the FMHA.

In other business, the Authority gave its approval, pending an agreement, for the erection of a traffic light at Anchor Road and Rte. 230. The request came from Frank and June Nardo of York, owners of the property there on which they intend to build a Jamesway store in the near future.

Glenn L. Kaylor served his first time as a member of the Supervisors' Board after being appointed on August 23rd, 1977 at a special meeting. His appointment was made following the resignation of Robert G. Hostetter.

Kaylor is a Republican candidate for that seat in the coming election.

Thatsa some spicy meatball

DID YOU HEAR....

Frank Consoli, the new owner-chef of the renovated Joy Tavern in Mount Joy, personally cans the hot peppers that add the spice to the home-made lasagna and ravioli and spaghetti that he is serving.

With a name like Consoli, you just know it's got to be some of the best Italian cooking around. You can check out those hot peppers on take-outs, too.