Breckline cleared ...

Bill Breckline, in the meantime, has found a job with the Donegal School District, and has not announced any plans to seek re-employment with the borough.

"A lot of people have called to say congratulations," Mr. Breckline said last weekend, "but so far, nobody has called to offer me a job with the borough."

There has been some speculation that Mr. Breckline might file suit against the borough, but, to date, neither Breckline nor his attorney have indicated that they are considering that possibility.

The preliminary hearing at which Mr. Breckline was cleared was held to determine whether there was enough evidence to warrant bringing the case to trial. Witnesses included Sgt. Steve Englert of the borough police (who filed the charges), borough Council President Oliver Overlander, borough Secretary-Treasurer Margaret Booth, and two borough employees who worked under Breckline's supervision.

The hearing lasted three hours. At the end, Justice Sheetz ruled that there was not enough evidence to justify a trial.

The prosecuting attorney was county assistant D.A. Joseph Madenspacher. Bill Breckline's attorney was S. R. Zimmerman III.

Farm Women Society #27 is holding an open house tour of seven farms in our area. All the homes on the tour are over 100 years old, and one was built in the 1750's. A real log house is also included.

The houses are chock full of historical and architectural interest. Walk-in fireplaces and deep sills will abound on this tour, and several of the seven farms are offering door prizes to visitors. The Lancaster County Beef and Poultry Queens will be on hand, as will the Dairy Princess. Most of the homes on the

One house is a springhouse. At another you can sit in on a quilting bee. You might be interested in seeing how runaway slaves were hidden in one home that was a link on the "underground railway" before the Civil War.

The farms on the tour will be open to the public between 1:00 and 7:00 on October 15th. They are located on: Milton Grove road, Mount Joy Road (2 on that route), Pinkerton Road (one on each side of Kinderhook Road), Musser Road between Donegal Springs and Flory Roads, and on Airport Road off Colebrook Road. Look for the signs.

The Farm Women contribute to the community and support various charitable organizations.

Senior League meets

You probably don't have an adequate diet. 80% of us don't, according to home economist Doris Thomas, who spoke to the Marietta Senior League last week. Ms. Thomas, of the Farm and Home Extension office, was guest speaker for the League's meeting.

She said that most people, while they eat enough, don't balance their diets with the four needed food groups: meat, milk, cereal, and vegetables.

She emphasized the nutritional requirements of older people.
