

IT PAYS TO INSULATE NOW!

No matter how you heat your home, no doubt it's costing you more than ever before. That's why it pays to insulate.

Sure, buying insulation means laying some money out now. But, the beauty of it is, you get it back . . . in energy savings . . . year after year.

Why is PP&L telling you this? Because we want to help you hold your electricity costs down—even though you may not heat your home electrically.

You see, even fuel-fired home heating systems depend on electric motors to circulate heat. If your home is well insulated these motors don't work as hard. And that saves electricity.

What's more, electricity powers air conditioners. In summer, that same insulation keeps your home cooler. That saves, too.

So, if your home is not insulated to the R-values shown above, consider adding at least enough insulation to reach these levels. "R" values indicate the thermal "resistance" of the insulation. The higher the R-value, the more effective the insulation will be.

Remember, energy is too valuable to waste . . . it pays to insulate.

"Saving energy . . . saves for all of us"
