Investigators needed

Lynn Goldfarb and Kenneth G. Roth have recently completed the required orientation training needed to be card-carrying consumer complaint investigators. They are now certified by the Consumer Protection Commission to investigate complaints out of the Lancaster County Courthouse.

Are you a potential Sam Spade? The Commission is accepting applications for volunteer investigators. If you are interested, apply in person at the office in the courthouse. You must have a clean police record and no conflicts of interest. Three weeks of on-the-job training lead to handling investigations on your own.

There are now only 10 investigators in the county.

Big day at IGA

About 40 seconds into the 100 seconds of the Thanksgiving Sweepstakes 100 at Stehman's IGA last week, Jeff Doane rushes to grab as much meat as possible while his wife Sally, who won the 1st prize ticket, watches. Jeff and Sally, who live in Harvestview apartments, were celebrating their first anniversary along with their first lottery prize (they don't buy PA lottery tickets, they say, and never won anything before).

The Doanes were guaranteed $150 worth of groceries, and rang up $16.82 over that in their spree. "We were freaked out when we heard we'd won," said Sally afterward. Shown above, left to right, are all the winners: Jeff and Sally on the left, then Mr. and Mrs. Nagel of Mount Joy with a 3rd prize turkey; Pearl Brubaker of Mount Joy with another turkey; Jane Goeke of Mount Joy, the same prize; and Nancy Valkenburg of Maytown, who got the 2nd prize of a $100 gift certificate.

The Sweepstakes were chaired by Rick Rossman for Stehman's IGA.

Cancer Society sells wreaths

The Cancer Society is offering locally-made 20 inch Christmas wreaths for $9 each again this year. Profits are used for research.

The wreaths are available in blue spruce or douglas fir in our area from Mrs. Frank Newcomer, 851 Locust Street, Columbia. Checks should be made out to the American Cancer Society.

Orders will be taken until Dec. 2nd, and pick-up of wreaths is scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 8th., and Friday the 9th (only afternoon pick-up on Thursday; all day Friday).

Order your wreath by mail from the Cancer Society, 625 Manor St, Lancaster. Tell them you'll pick it up in Columbia.

Out of locks

The free security locks offered to oldsters by the Office of Aging have been snatched up. The agency ran out of them, and won't have any until December 1st, when 5000 more will arrive here.

ECKANKAR?

Here is another release from ECKANKAR for your spiritual edification -ed.

"Star Wars," says Sri Darwin Gross, the spiritual leader of ECKANKAR, the Path of Total Awareness, "is a delightful study of the power of ECK. No wonder everyone is talking about it."

Sri Darwin is obviously referring to the spiritual power referred to as "the force" in Star Wars...

"Just as Luke Skywalker practiced daily to work with the force, so do ECKists contemplate daily to partake of the ECK. It is through doing this daily half hour contemplation exercise that ECKists are able to serve and benefit humanity," he explains.
