The Political Education Project of the Human Relations Committee is publishing a series of booklets, all titled Page One, on various aspects of the political process. The First, Page One — Voting, is now available. Another will be ready by February 15th.

Page One — Voting explains in simple and clear language just how to go about casting your vote. It runs 15 pages, is available in English and Spanish.

The booklet tells you how to vote by machine and by ballot. It explains how servicemen and shutins can vote. It even explains the difference between primaries elections and general elections. Page One publications can be picked up at the Mount Joy Library or the High School.

York College

High school students who are still undecided about their future careers can get some practical help from York College of Pennsylvania.

The College has a series of nine articles covering the important aspects of careers in nursing, banking and finance, writing, police science, government and public administration, engineering management, recreation, and medical records.

Big Sisters?

The Big Brothers organization, at its last board meeting, voted to let women into the program as Big Sisters. About 40% of all Big Brother groups now admit women.

The Big Sister Pilot Project will involve about 30 girls and run for less than a year. Presumably it will be adopted permanently if successful.

If readers know of any girls aged 7 to 16 whose mothers are dead, missing, work too many hours to pay enough attention to their daughters, or are emotionally unable to cope with their daughters, give the Big Brothers a call at 397-7567 on weekdays before 4:30 PM.

Any women who would like to be Big Sisters can call the same number.

The Big Brothers say that, in the case of girls whose mothers are at home, the Big Sisters will not be intended to replace the mother, but to support her. Big Sisters will not have to put in inordinate amounts of time should they volunteer.
