Keystone Bible Institute

A Keystone Bible Institute will be held at the Mount Joy Mennonite Church, Donegal Springs Road, on February 6th through 10th.

The institute is operated by churches from the Anabaptist tradition, but the entire Christian community is invited to register for the Institute's classes.

Classes will deal with "Divorce and Remarriage: a Perspective for Counseling;" "Evangelism;" "Prayer;" and "Dealing Redemptively with Persons Involved in Divorce and Remarriage."

Other courses will run concurrently. The Keystone Institute, in its 7th year, provides instruction in Bible, church history, etc. The classes in Mount Joy can be used for credit at Mennonite and Messiah Colleges.

Baby-sitting will be provided. There are day and night courses. For more information, write to Chester L. Wenger, Box 27, Landisville, PA, or call him at 898-2251.

Biblical literary criticism

Dr. Nancy M. Tischler, professor of English and humanities at Penn State-Capitol Campus, has published a book, "Legacy of Eve," which analyzes the character of more than 20 women in the Bible, with special emphasis on Eve and Mary. Additional chapters deal with biblical women as wives, temptresses and queens.

The study was done as a literary criticism, rather than simply from a religious point of view, said Tischler. Her research revealed how deeply imbedded the harlot, mother and bride images are in the scriptures.

The author is an editor-at-large for "Christianity Today" magazine and a former national president of the Conference on Christianity and Literature. She lives in Elizabethtown with her husband, Merle, an estate-planning officer for National Central Bank, and their two sons, Eric, 13 and Grant, 9.
