Robert Pekarek, a DHS junior, got the highest score of the 32 students, from 20 districts, who took the E-town College annual math competition exam. He's the son of James Pekarek, Mount Joy RD1. Robert wants to major in math when he goes to college.

Computer games

by Emil Swift

During the DHS Science Fair, the math department will hold its annual Computer Exhibit. On display will be various student written programs of every variety.

Parents and friends are invited to see their programs in action. Trivia tests, spelling quizzes, word games and word finds are programmed and ready to run. Want to check on your banking affairs? Check our interest programs.

Student programmed art work is available. Sailboats, Snoopy, Woodstock, animals and a variety of art projects appear on the computer console through the programming efforts of our students.

Try your hand at parchesi, monopoly, find your way through a maze, or have your biorythms charted in a matter of seconds.

These and other programs will be available in room 210, from 7:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., March 9.
