To all friends, neighbors and relatives, for all the prayers, visits, cards, and gifts that I received during my stay in the hospital. Also my gratitude goes to those persons who helped and are still helping with the farm work. It is most rewarding to know that in a time of need there are those who care.

Add Insulation to Your Attic Now!

With energy costs on the rise, there's no better time to add insulation to your home. Your attic is the easiest, most economical place to start.

True, most homes have some attic insulation. But, unless it's about 10 inches thick . . . or the equivalent of R-30 . . . there's room for improvement.

Of all the ways to save money and energy, this investment is one of the wisest you can make. Why? Because insulation pays for itself. Not only in reduced heating costs, but in lower cooling costs . . . season after season . . . for the life of your home!

You'll like the extra measure of comfort in your home, too. Plus there's comfort in knowing that should you ever sell your home, additional insulation means additional value.

Other Savings Tips

- Add storm doors and windows
- Weatherstrip and caulk your home
- Recommended thermostat settings are:
No higher than 68 degrees in winter —
no lower than 78 degrees in summer
