They were the first in a string of 13 owners of the Candy Shoppe who succeeded in making a going business out of it. Now, after 44 years' operation, they are selling it to retire, fish, and travel.

After a talk by the guest speaker, "Tic" Hurst, M.C. Willis Herr turned the podium over to past president P. Michael Sload, who installed the new officers: James Wise, president; John Spickler, internal vice president; Harvey Reem, external vice president; Gary Morris, secretary; Charles Loucks, treasurer; William Wagner, state director; Donald Pickle, Jr., ways and means director; Jay Risser, internal director; and William Cunningham, external director.

Ed Flanagan, the son of Marietta mayor J. Robert Flanagan and a member of the York City Police, was surprised by a special honorary plaque. He got it for the act of heroism during a York fire which was described by the Times several months ago.

"I never expected this," he said afterward.

Outgoing president Rick Sload presented the following awards as voted by members of the chapter: Internal project of the year was the family picnic co-chaired by C. Willis Herr and Don Simmons;

The external project prize was tied between the Children's Fair (Jay Risser, chairman) and the Halloween Parade (chaired by Harvey Reem);

Ways and Means project of the year was 4th of July (Harvey Reem);

Chairman of the year went to Don Pickle, Jr.;

External chairman, ways and means award was won by Harvey Reem;

Keyman Award for '77-'78 was Bill Sload;

First Year Men were Gary Morris and Bill Cunningham.

Harvey Reem was voted the Jaycee of the Year. Charles Loucks received a presidential Award of Merit, as did Richard Sipe and John Spickler.

Rick Sload was given the Past President plaque by Don Simmons, chairman of the Board of Directors.
