Poem

by Chester Wittell

Thou whom the scripture names of rod divine
 Who stripped the nimbus from the tyrant-head
 Of false authority, and from the dead
 Raised hope to light the gloom of faith's decline—
 Who spake amid the olive and the vine,
 And wrought miracle of fish and bread,
 And by the power of faith inspirited,
 Changed hate to love and water into wine:
 Why did'st Thou pledge a second coming? Nay,
 Revoke the promise; Let the spirit sleep.
 Not now Thy face show unto man, I pray;
 Lest Thou in sadness look to see how we,
 Who vowed unceasing vigil there to keep,
 Have wracked the Garden of Gethsemane.
