

Elaine Holden is president of board of Historic Preservation Trust

Elaine Holden of Mount Joy RD1 was recently elected to president of the board of the Historic Preservation Trust of Lancaster County. She is well known in the community for her avid interest in architecture and historic preservation.

Ms. Holden, who calls herself "a concerned citizen," was formerly the chairwoman of the Rock Ford Foundation.

In regard to her new job, she said, "The Trust expects to work closely with members of the business community, government agencies, county preservation organizations, and interested citizens."

"Through this cooperative effort, I see no reason why the Historic Preservation Trust can't be as successful as Historic Charleston or Historic Savannah, two outstanding preservation organizations."

She succeeds John W. Aungst, Jr., as board president.

Ms. Holden is a new member on the board, along with several others (including Ken Ross of Marietta) who were added in a move to expand the board to 30 members.

She has restored two old houses herself, both in Mount Joy.

Day, Pekarek, and Runkle will attend Keystone Boys' State

W.S. Ebersole Post 185 American Legion will sponsor three local young men as their representatives at the Keystone Boys' State, a model government leadership training event. The three are:

John D. Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Day III of 205 Park Avenue, Mount Joy;

Robert Pekarek, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Pekarek, RD1 Mount Joy; and Floyd E. Runkle, son of Theresa A. Runkle of RD1 Marietta.

All three are juniors at Donegal High. They will go to Millersville State College for the Boys' State, a shorter trip than last year's boys had to take to Shippensburg.

Besides the mock government, they will participate in sports and swimming, and will have time to attend religious services.

They can also play in the band that will be organized.
