

Local people honored at SICO banquet

Nancy J. Ryder

Evelyn M. Snook

Robert K. Shank

Four local people were among those honored at the Sico Company's annual employees' banquet at the Strasburg Inn on May 5th.

Awarded gold monogrammed pins were: Robert K. Shank, 409 Birchland Ave., Mount Joy, for 30 years' service; Paul E. Blecher, RD2 Mount Joy, for 25 years' service; Nancy

J. Ryder, 701 W. Main St., Mount Joy, for 10 years' service; and Evelyn M. Snook, 948-B W. Main St., Mount Joy, for 10 years' service with the company.

Making the presentations, Sico president Robert McGinley noted that the average length of service for the 21 honored persons who attended was more than 20 years. He added that he is proud to be a member of an organization with such loyalty and continuity.

More than 400 employees attended the banquet.

bout. Paul Bradley, right, was a winner.

The festivities lasted all day. The high point of excitement came when the teachers had a tug-o-war with the top-tugging class, and roundly defeated the kids. The rest of the school chanted in unison, "Come on Teacher!" while the kids were dragged to earth.
