...Mount Joy council

The new traffic ordinance was not voted on because changes were being incorporated, and Mr. Smith objected to voting on an ordinance without the final draft, typed, in front of him. Mr. Smith had earlier in the meeting discovered an error in wording that would have allowed people to park on snow removal routes during the middle of a blizzard.

Mr. Keller said that "Citizens should feel free to pick up a copy of the new ordinance at the borough office. We'd rather have any objections voiced before it's voted on."

Paul Stehman moved that the borough's house in the park have its rent raised from $100 a month to $125 a month. Much discussion followed.

Some of the councilmen felt that when the question of continuing to rent to the Graybills had come up several years ago, an implicit promise had been made by council to keep the rent at $100 for five years. They felt that council would be going back on its word if it raised the rent.

The rest of council felt that $100 a month for an entire house was "subsidized rent," and that another $25 a month would still be very cheap.

The motion carried, with Ammon Smith, Omar Groff and Donald Zeller voting against it. The vote was 5 to 3.

In other business, council voted to:

—hire an architect, for up to $550, to figure out the best way to utilize space in the borough office and the Shatto property;

—awarded the oil bid to Newcomer Oil Co.;

—applied for $20,000 in matching funds for park improvements;

—heard that the storm drain near New Standard, which had been clogged, was cleared out and is probably working now;

—agreed to spend $750 to hire specialists to re-write the police pension plan.

—approved the appointment of Russell Chapin as representative to ACLG.
