Local people help organize farm show in Park City

Last week saw the grand opening of the Lancaster County Farmer's Association exhibition of farm life, farming techniques, and farm equipment in Park City. Opened by a ribbon-cutting ceremony with Lancaster mayor Richard Scott, it will continue till Saturday.

Events include modeling of wool clothes (today, 7-9), a demonstration on egg cheese by world-famous Mount Joy cook Betty Groff (Thurs, 7-9), a Jug-a-

-Lug milk drinking contest (Fri., 7), an ice cream eating contest (Sat., 7), and a beekeeping exhibition on Saturday. This exhibit is a big production; we can't list everything that will be there.
