The Lion Who Wouldn't at Columbia Little Theater

The spotlights play on the center ring where the cage has been set up. The ringmaster announces, "And now, in the center ring, the star of the show - the lion!" The audience awaits the entrance of a snarling, savage beast.

What would happen if, instead, the lion came out reading a book and munching on a banana, declaring that he no longer wanted to be a circus lion? This possibility is explored in the Columbia Little Theatre's production of The Lion Who Wouldn't. This delightful children's play by Gifford W. Wingate, with music by Allan Jay Friedman, will be presented to the public on Friday, November 3, at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday, November 4, at 1:30 p.m. at Columbia High School Auditorium.

The role of the Lion, who daydreams throughout the play about taking up such jobs as baseball pitcher, teacher, detective, and actor, is being portrayed by Louise White. The Lion's trainer, whom the Lion thinks of as his "attendant", will be played by Joe Lively. The children who help the Lion live out his daydreams include David Dietrich as Mark, Colleen Barr as Marilyn, William Weaver as Sam, Ilsa Powell as Sue, Scott Mackison as John, Christine Haug as Jane, Scott Demmy as Bill, and Mary Loreto as Bess. Tammy White and John Elliot are acting as understudies.

The play is under the direction of Mary Jane Demmy. Music is being directed by Jay Graver and Steve Weibley. Tickets will be available through cast members and at the door. Admission is $3.00 for adults, $2.00 for students and senior citizens, and $1.00 for children under 12 years of age.

Churches team up for UNICEF drive

The English United Presbyterian Church and St. John's Episcopal Church, Marietta, will make their annual UNICEF visitation for the needy children of the world. This is a government sponsored and approved program and practically 100% of the money solicited is used to help the unfortunate children. The solicitation will be made Saturday, Oct. 21, at 9:30 a.m., with volunteers from the English United Presbyterian Church soliciting the west end of Marietta and volunteers from St. John's Episcopal Church Soliciting the east end of Marietta.

Hot Air

You can prepare for the FAA balloon license exam by taking a course at F&M, starting Nov. 2.

The class, which covers only hot-air ballooning, will be taught by Kent Strickler of Lancaster.
