Mariettians star in The Lion Who Wouldn't

On Friday, November 3, at 7:30 PM and Saturday, November 4, at 1:30 PM and 7:30 PM, the Columbia Little Theatre will unveil its first children's production, THE LION WHO WOULDN'T. As this enchanting musical by Gifford W. Wingate with music by Allan Jay Friedman unfolds, it becomes quite clear that this Lion is no ordinary circus lion. He reads too much, eats too much, and has too lively an imagination for his own good. This Lion wants to be everything other lions aren't - a baseball pitcher, a teacher, a sea captain, a detective, and an actor. The children who come to see the circus help the Lion to see that he really isn't suited for any of those occupations. The Lion's trainer, whom he refers to as his "attendant," patiently awaits the Lion to realize that being the star of the Big Top isn't so bad after all.

The role of the Lion has been taken by Louise White, who was recently cast as Ruthie in the Little Theatre's production of THE SECRET LIFE OF WALTER MITTY. Joe Lively, who portrays the Lion's long-suffering Attendant, took the title role in that same summer production. The lead boy's role of Mark will be played by David Dietrich. Colleen Barr will portray Marilyn, Mark's counterpart. The other children who round out the Lion's friends are Mary Loreto as Bess, Scott Demmy as Bill, Christine Haug as Jane, Scott Mackison as John, Ilsa Powell as Sue, and William Weaver as Sam.

Mary Jane Demmy is directing this charming play for children. Jay Graver and Steve Weibley are directing the music for the show. The production will be presented at the Columbia High School Auditorium. Tickets may be purchased at the door or from cast members. The prices are $2.00 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

MARK OSBORNE... "One of my targets would be the special expense accounts given to legislators in committee chairmanships and assignments. They are not necessary."

MARK OSBORNE... "Taxpayers should get their money's worth. They deserve a representative who is responsible and responsive to his neighbors' needs. I pledge myself to serve my constituency."
