

Shown above is Mrs. Margaret Garber's 1st grade class at Maytown School, along with their tadpoles. The tadpoles are in the plastic tanks on the desks.

The class has raised the tads from frog eggs as a science project. The kids are keeping day-by-day records of the tadpoles' growth, and watching their habits through magnifying glasses.

Only spring water can be used in the tanks, according to Mrs. Garber. Ordinary tap water kills the creatures.

Long Underwear

Were you cold? Here's something to keep in mind for next winter—long underwear.

Long johns come in various styles, including the old-fashioned union suits, sometimes called "passion killers." You can still get them in fire-engine red. Most types are like pyjamas, in two pieces.

Ladies can buy "snuggies," which won't make you look fat.

Energy-conscious Americans have been buying long underwear in record quantities during the last few years of lowered thermostats and winter sports popularity.

Donegal Students excel in Scholastic Art Show

Donegal students did very well in the Scholastic Art Show being held at Van Scriver's on West King St. in Lancaster. Thirty-two works by local students were selected for inclusion in the exhibit, which will run during regular store hours (including Mon., Weds., and Fri. evenings, plus Sunday afternoons) from now through March 10.

Of the 2,312 entries from throughout Lancaster City and County, 600 were selected for exhibit. Of these, 150 won Gold Key awards, and a mere 60 were selected as "finalists," to be sent on to national competition.

Donegal's biggest winners were;

—Randy Fellenbaum, a senior, with 3 Gold Key awards

—Floyd Runkle, a senior, with one Gold Key and one Finalist award

—Vicki Fogie with two Gold Key awards

—Linda Eberly, with a Gold Key.

Donegal students whose work is on display include; Julie Spence, Curtis Thompson, Ben Snyder, Randy Fellenbaum, Jon Horst, Melissa Sperla, exhibit. Fellenbaum led the pack with six accepted entries, followed by Runkle with 5, Fogie with 4 and Eberly with 3.

The large King Street show window of Van Scriver's was designed by Linda Ross, DHS art teacher and member of the regional advisory committee for scholastics.
