

Girl Scouts study career possibilities

About 100 local girl scouts are combining pleasure and learning at Sico Park day camp this week.

Many programs are going on at the camp. Each unit is assigned one nation, and the girls study the language, customs, and learn about girl scouting in that country.

Some of the younger kids have gone on tours of Mount Joy and learned some local history.

Last Wednesday a panel of women in various professions talked with the girl scouts.

The women were: Connie Walp, an occupational therapist for Easter Seals; Marlene Joyce, a reporter and announcer for radio stations WLPA-AM and WNCE-FM; Rev. Elizabeth Iseminger, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Marietta and Bainbridge; Lee Gardner, television personality from WLYH-TV; and trooper Romaine Engle of the Pennsylvania State Police.

Bring your own meat to Welcome Wagon picnic

The Mount Joy Welcome Wagon will hold a picnic at Sico Park pavilion no. 9 on August 19 at 1 p.m.

Members should bring their own meat to grill, something to drink, and a covered dish, hot or cold, to share with everyone. Members should also bring plates and cups. Forks and spoons will be provided, as will mustard and ketchup and the grills.

There will be volleyball, softball, and sandbox play for the little ones.

On August 23 at 8 p.m., there will be a farewell party for Dianne Hummel at the Watering Trough. Dianne and her family are moving to Wellsboro, Pa., at the end of this month. The Welcome Wagon officers stated that they will miss Dianne, but wish her well in her new community.

Dianne was very active in the club, serving as president in 1977-78.

Members planning to attend should call Sue Binkle at 653-4895.
