Butterflies are beautiful but also tough fighters

To us giants, the delicate butterfly looks—and is—harmless. But its appearance is deceptive: actually, the butterfly is a tough, combative insect.

Butterflies are "astonishingly aggressive," according to National Wildlife magazine. An angry butterfly may chase an intruder for up to 500 yards.

Butterflies are territorial, and will attack anything that invades their turf, be it insect, cat, human or frisbee. Fortunately, they can't bite.

Butterflies often have terrific brawls, three or four of them using the brute force of impact to knock off each others' antennae and wings.

Like rebel troops, butterflies yell as they fight. Their battle cries are made by snapping body segments together and waving their wings in a peculiar beat. The clicks are audible up to 100 feet away.

Butterflies are thought to have the broadest "visible spectrum" of any creature, being able to see both infrared and ultraviolet. Their taste sensitivity is 2400 times better than ours, according to scientists.

National Wildlife has some suggestions for people who like butterflies. Here they are:

1. Let the edges of your lawn grow wild for a habitat.
2. Leave some thistles and nettles growing. Butterflies feed on them. In general, many weeds are butterfly food.
3. Avoid using chemical insecticides.
4. Grow small, bright flowers.

There are 20,000 species of butterflies in the world, and about 700 in the U.S.

Dr. Ralph A. Strong to preach at Donegal Presbyterian Sunday

by Ron Steinmetz

Dr. Ralph A. Strong, Associate Executive of the Synod of the Trinity, will be in the pulpit of Donegal Presbyterian Church at the 9:00 AM worship service on Sunday, August 26th.

Donegal Presbytery, which was organized at Donegal Church in 1732, is part of the Synod of the Trinity, which includes Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia and Ohio. Dr. Strong is responsible for assisting the Synod Executive in the implementation of goals and mission direction of the Synod, and for providing resource staff services for various committees.

He was previously Executive Presbyterian of Shenango Presbytery, and has served as educational consultant for the Synods of the Trinity, Indiana, Arizona and Illinois. He held pastorates in Kansas and Nebraska. A native of Montana, he holds degrees from Seattle Pacific College in Washington, Presbyterian Seminary in Omaha, Neb., and Arizona State University in Tempe. He was awarded the D.D. degree in 1970 by Hanover College. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Phi, honorary societies in education.

Dr. Strong is a member of the board of directors of the Instrument for the Observation of Teaching Activities in the Church (INSTRO-TEACH). His office is in Camp Hill. The Strong's are parents of two grown sons.

Dr. Strong is at Donegal in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Victor Baer, who is on vacation. Ruling Elder Dorcas Moyer will assist in the service.
