Marietta Borough Council votes for shutdown of reactors at T.M.I.

Marietta Borough Council adopted a resolution calling for the immediate shutdown of both reactors at Three Mile Island when they met for the September session.

In an unusual move, Council made up a press release to go with copies of the resolution. This release stated that "A group of concerned Marietta residents" had moved them to pass the resolution.

The resolution follows:

WHEREAS, our community of Marietta has been traditionally dependent upon the Susquehanna River for its livelihood and today enjoys it in its development and prosperity and,

WHEREAS, we believe that the economic success of Marietta has suffered as a result of the accident at Three Mile Island and,

WHEREAS, we are concerned about the maintenance of the natural resource of the Susquehanna River for use by our future generations for recreational purposes so,

THEREFORE, let it be resolved that we demand of our State and Federal officials an immediate closing of the Three Mile Island Nuclear Facility, and,

Be it further resolved that we demand that any present discharges of radioactive material into the air or water from the Three Mile Island

Nuclear Facility be halted immediately and any proposed discharges into the air or water be denied and,

Also, let it be further resolved that we demand that the Nuclear Regulatory Committee [sic] and Metropolitan Edison take Total responsibility to insure the safety of the citizens of Marietta in any clean up efforts.

Marietta hires 3 new policepersons

Marietta Council finalized the hiring of four new part-time police officers last week. The new officers are Ruth McConnell, Kent Moore, George Williams, and Richard Kauffman. Kauffman is replacing Larry Waltz.

The new police will provide their own uniforms and equipment, and will be reimbursed at the end of a year's service, after they get enough schooling to be accredited by the state.

It was reported at the meeting that Chief Millar is in the hospital.

Marietta will not sell land to park

Marietta Council voted down a proposal by the Lancaster County Park Board at their last meeting. The Board wanted to buy 29 acres of land in the borough along the river, to provide access to the waterfront.

Council will inquire of the Board as to their plans for road upkeep and general clarification of their scheme.

Paul Raber resigns

Paul Raber, Marietta's long-time dog law officer, submitted his resignation to the borough recently. The Marietta Council accepted his letter, to take effect October 1st, with regret.

Flood plain regulations

The new HUD flood plain regulations for Marietta are expected to be in effect by February of next year. The borough expects federal assistance in drawing up maps and new ordinances.

In other business the Council:

—appointed Francis Allum to the Housing Hearing Board;

—announced that intense work on the Union Meeting House will begin in October;

—granted an extension of a building permit to Robert Estill of York (the builder of Marietta Court Apartments) because of rising interest rates;

—appointed Steve Sload to the Zoning Hearing Board (replacing Robert Kibler, whose resignation was accepted with regret);

—and announced that people who do not pick up applications for building permits will be billed.

No entries will be returned, unless the sender requests it and encloses a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Suzannah Nolt [left] and Francine Huss are contestants for Miss Lancaster County

Which girl will be Miss Lancaster: Francine Huss or Suzannah Nolt?

What could tall, attractive 21-year-old brunette college senior Francine E. Huss and slender, striking 17-year-old blonde high school senior Suzannah Nolt possibly have in common?

Well, for starters, they both love to eat, both can dance up a storm, both are from Mount Joy, both are the youngest of several children, both have done some modeling, both like to jog. And, currently and most importantly to each, both are candidates for the title of Miss Lancaster County.

The 28th annual Miss Lancaster County Scholarship Pageant, known nationally as one of the most well-known and well-organized preliminaries to the prestigious Miss America Pageant, will take place on Saturday, September 29, at 8:00 PM in the Ephrata

High School auditorium.

And both Francine and Suzy are off and running—literally—in preparation for the big night.

It's a lot of work, they agree with vigorous nods, and the training and practice have become daily occurrences that start with such basics as a good diet, plenty of rest, attention to hair, complexion, clothes—and practice, practice, practice.

Francine is a senior at Adelphi University on Long Island, and sometimes both the time and the place for practicing is hard to find. "I try to practice every day," this engaging young woman says, "especially the more difficult steps in my routine." For her talent presentation in the pageant, Francine will do a jazz dance to "The Music and the Mirror" from the Broadway show "Chorus Line." She's dancing in high heeled shoes for the first time, and that's taken some getting used to. "At school I have to change clothes and go to find an empty room or studio somewhere. It's hard," she smiles, "but I'm really enjoying it."

Practice time for Suzannah Nolt has been hard to find, too. Blonde, blue-eyed Suzy is the female half of the fourth-ranked junior figure skating pair team in the Eastern U.S., and most of her moments are spent practicing on ice with her brother Jeff, 18. "Jeff and I have an apartment in Wilmington and live there most of the time to train with our coach Ron Ludington. We skate six to eight hours a day, but the month of September is between the summer and winter training [continued on page 2]
