

Donegal students see new faces at the blackboards

John L. Felix, Jr.

Mr. Felix is from Maple Glen, Pa., but has moved to Rivermoor near Marietta. He is teaching social studies at D.H.S.

He was graduated from Millersville State College, where he wrestled, and from Upper Dublin High School. Last year he was a substitute teacher at Conestoga Valley High School. He is an assistant football coach at Donegal and plans to serve as an assistant wrestling coach.

Mr. Felix describes himself as "an outdoor person." He likes to hunt, fish, and camp. For the last three years he has been going late every spring to the Northwoods Country of Minnesota, where he fishes for walleye and northern pike. It's been his "highlight of spring." He won't be able to get in as much fishing this year as he did last, when he was a part-time substitute teacher.

About Donegal, he says, "I like it here. I wouldn't have stayed here if I hadn't liked it here. I have fished every stream in the county."

Deborah Geno

Miss Geno is from Drexel Hill, Pa. She is teaching high school mathematics. A graduate of Millersville and Upper Darby High School, she played varsity hockey at MSC and was co-captain of the team. She also played lacrosse and dived on the swimming team; she coached the Millersville divers.

She is fan for almost all sports.

Miss Geno is assistant hockey coach at Donegal.

Susan D. Reider

Miss Reider is from Middletown and was graduated from Millersville, where she was always on the dean's list and from which she received her degree cum laude. At Millersville she sang in the chorus and worked on the student newspaper.

Last year she was a full-time substitute at Conestoga Valley High School. She will be a cheerleading coach in Donegal schools.

Her interests are "music, drama, and horses." She does needlecraft and like to watch football. She plays the clarinet and piano, in addition to singing.

William G. Strausbaugh From Hanover, Pa., Mr. Strausbaugh graduated from Messiah College mag-na cum laude.

At Messiah he played varsity basketball, was captain of the team and voted most valuable player. He was a member of the athletic committee at Messiah and the judiciary review board.

Upon graduation, he was elected to the board of trustees of the college. He has won the Alumni Award, Coaches' Award, and the Hanover Area Booster Club Award among Messiah graduates.

Last year in the last month of school he was a full-time substitute for Mr. Swift.

In addition to teaching math in the high school he will be assistant basketball coach.

Mrs. Robin Wenger

Originally from Quakertown, Pa., Mrs. Wenger lives with her husband Merv at R.D. 2, Manheim. Before her marriage her name was Robin Roth.

She was graduated from West Chester State College and Quakertown High School. She served as a full-time substitute at Beahm Jr. High last year. This year she is a full-time substitute math teacher for Mrs. Keesey, who was granted maternity leave.

In college she was on the yearbook staff and belonged to national service sorority.

Her main activity outside of school now is playing volleyball.

Susan M. Ursprung

From Willow Street, Miss Ursprung has moved to the Mount Joy area.

She is a graduate of Bloomsburg State College and Lancaster Catholic High School.

She is teaching English at Beahm Jr. High.

Previously she was a substitute teacher in Phoenixville and Beaver Springs, Pa.

In addition to teaching, she will be a cheerleader coach.

Reading is one of her favorite activities; Kaffka and Ibsen are her favorite writers. She also likes the Russian writers.

She enjoys all kinds of music, especially rock. She plays no instruments herself, but she says, "I sing to myself."

She enjoys watching soccer and wrestling.

In addition to teaching she is pursuing graduate studies at West Chester in instructional media, TV and radio.

About her new neighbors she says, "The people here are very nice to me. They are nice people, and this is a nice town."

Mrs. Kathleen Hughes

(Mrs. Hughes was ill and unavailable for an interview and photograph by the Times last week. We wish her a speedy recovery.)

Mrs. Hughes lives in Harrisburg and will teach fourth grade at Seiler Elementary School in Mount Joy.

She is a graduate of Indiana University, Pa., where she earned a master's as well as a bachelor's degree. She is also a graduate of Shannock Valley High School in Rural Valley, Pa.

For over 11 years she was a teacher in Rural Valley Elementary School in Armstrong County.

She has been active in civic, professional, and church groups.

Mrs. Lesley Jo Schoch

Mrs. Schoch lives at R.D. 3, Elizabethtown, with her husband, James C. Schoch. Before her marriage she was Lesley Jo Olewiler.

She is teaching half-time in the kindergarten at Maytown Elementary.

She is a graduate of Red Lion High School and Lebanon Valley College, from which she was graduated summa cum laude. She was elected to

Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

She was departmental assistant in elementary education at Lebanon Valley. She played the piano and sang in the chorus. She was captain of the cheerleaders, and was chosen to be Homecoming Queen.

During the summers Mrs. Schoch was an instructor in camps for high school cheerleaders for the National Cheerleaders Association in Dallas.

Her hobbies are water and snow skiing, raising plants, participating in sports, especially tennis, and reading children's books. Someday she hopes to write children's books.

Brenda Eberly

Miss Eberly is a Mount Joy native who graduated from Millersville State College and D.H.S., '75. She is a full-time substitute for Miss Nancy Ettaro, who resigned as a teacher at Grandview Elementary to take a position in the Capital Area I.U. Miss Eberly is teaching pre-first grade at Grandview. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Kathryn Eberly, works in the office at Grandview.

Miss Eberly's hobbies are handicrafts, bowling, and tennis. Her specific crafts are macrame, needlepoint, and cross-stitching. She makes all her own clothes.

"I like the outdoors," she says. She likes to ice skate.

Her philosophy of education is simple: "to get the kids to learn, make it interesting."

For Miss Eberly teaching at Grandview is something special. She attended Grandview as a pupil herself. She has always wanted to be a teacher and used to play school at home. As a little girl she dreamed about one day being a teacher at Grandview herself. Now she is.

"It's a really, really good feeling," she says.

She also says, "I understand better now what my teachers went through—the discipline problems, for example." Some of Miss Eberly's former teachers are her colleagues now.

Cute sayings

From our kids

Zelda Heisey has given us four stories about children's cute sayings this week.

The first is about a little boy who was asked by his Sunday School teacher to draw a picture of the Flight into Egypt.

The little boy drew a picture of an airplane carrying as passengers: Joseph, Mary and the Baby Jesus—plus another person toward the front of the plane.

"Who's that?" asked the teacher pointing to the man in the front of the plane.

"Oh, that is Pontius the Pilot," said the boy brightly.

Zelda's next story happened some years ago in Mount Joy. A mother was trying to get some work done inside her house but her children were continually coming in and tattling on each other's misbehavior. Finally, in exasperation she said, "The next child that comes in here tattling on another is going to be sent up to his room for the rest of the day."

There was no more tattling for about twenty minutes. Then her son Jim burst in and said, "Deb stuck her tongue out at me—" He stopped, suddenly remembering his mother's threat, and quickly added, "Never mind; I wanted to see what her tongue looked like anyhow," and was gone.

Zelda's third story is about her father Fred Gehman when he was a little boy in Caernarvon Township. Little Fred and his brothers had witnessed a baptism in a creek a few days before and decided to have their own ceremony.

They filled a tub full of water and proceeded to baptize a litter of kittens one by one, with total immersion, of course. But when it came time to baptize the mother cat they had their hands full. The mother cat "clawed them something awful." Fred asked his brother Charlie, who was doing the baptizing, "What are you going to do?"

"Aw," said Charlie, "let's sprinkle her and let her go to H---."

The last story is about Zelda's grandmother Bert, who was the owner of a blue hen, of which she was very proud.

One day Bert came home from church and went out to feed her blue hen, but found it gone. No one was able to find Bert's blue hen.

A couple days later a neighbor boy showed up at the Gehmans and said, "Mrs. Gehman, we do not have your blue hen under a barrel in our cellar."

"Needless to say," says Zelda, "Bert recovered her blue hen."
