

The Hawthorn-Miller House

The Hawthorn-Miller House

THE HAWTHORN-MILLER HOUSE, Race St., Bainbridge, is an ancestral log cabin which was repurchased by the family in 1967, for the purpose of restoration and to provide housing for the sixth generation of the proprietor of Hawthorn's Furniture and Interiors, and the J. Hawthorn Miller Funeral Home of Bainbridge.

The original log cabin lost its basic rectangular shape in 1845, when it became a modified "T" to provide more space for an expanding family. A typical country home was the outcome of this expansion including the addition of a summer kitchen.

The interior of the house has been completed and a number of antiques of the period will be found in place. They were created in the Hawthorn cabinetmaker shops which were originally located directly across the street. Yet uncompleted is the landscaping which will tie the whole home together with its colonial gardens, fence rows and patio.

Jack Hawthorn Miller and his wife, Janice will be happy to discuss any questions you may have pertaining to the house or its furnishings.

"Hackberry Hill"

DRS. IRWIN & M. SUSAN RICHMAN, R1, Bainbridge, both professors at Penn State, Capital Campus in Middletown, live at "Hackberry Hill". It is also the home of Rev. and Mrs. E.O. Steigerwalt, retired.

The house was built in several stages from circa 1830 to circa 1970, and here the principle attraction is the gardens built in and around the foundations of a Pennsylvania German bank barn which burned in the 1950's. In the tradition of Italian Renaissance garden planning, the gardens are terraced down the hillside, each terrace with its own personality. One is a Pennsylvania German four square garden, a second follows an English formal design, and the third is a contemporary garden with boulder strewn landscape built around a free form swimming pool. Other less formal gardens dot the five acre property.

Only the family room of the home is open for the tour, and in it Mrs. E.O. Steigerwalt, will demonstrate the art of weaving. She will be joined by a neighbor, Pauline Garman, who will demonstrate the art of spinning.

deVitry Farmhouse

deVITRY HOUSE, Rt. 441, Bainbridge, a farmhouse, known as "Sunny Corner" was built in 1776 of native flintstone. The surrounding porch was added by Norman Hoffman in 1922 and was partially enclosed by Pierre deVitry.

Special features (original) include: walk-in stone fireplace with bracket for crane and recessed niche, stone sink with drain outlet alongside the fireplace, triple circular staircase, wall with wind-up bucket. There were originally four fireplaces, but the two at the furnace end are blocked off for the flue. The stone chimneys are visible in the attic and their recessed foundations in the cellar. Much of the wide-board flooring throughout the house is old but has been repaired.

The farm, including woodland, consists of approximately 43 acres.

St. Luke's Lutheran Church

ST. LUKE'S LUTHERAN CHURCH, 2nd St., Bainbridge, was organized in 1835. The property and meetinghouse were purchased in 1839.

The old church building was used by the Union soldiers during the Civil War and was remodeled in 1895. This building and the Sunday School building erected in 1905 are still in use today. In 1957, a new wing was built and dedicated.

A number of unusual crafts will be on display at this stop along with interesting demonstrations of the crafts in progress. Chairs will be available for your relaxation and enjoyment of the presentations.

The Old Blacksmith Shop

THE OLD BLACKSMITH SHOP, 2nd St., Bainbridge, is a rare example of early Americana in an unusual setting. The building and its forge have been painstakingly restored to their original condition by Mr. Richard W. Brooks and his son, Wayne Brooks.

In restoring this rare shop, father and son found the original tools, including the bellows, forge, colonial anvil, hammers, tongs and forging tools. Mr. Richard Brooks, an accomplished gunmaker and blacksmith, uses this equipment today to make items similar to those used by the early settlers of this area. He has collected many early tools to create a fascinating, authentic display. A number of local antiques are also on display.

The Haldeman Mansion

THE HALDEMAN MANSION, Locust Grove, Bainbridge, had its beginning somewhere in the time period of 1738. The actual plantation of 440 acres was granted to John Galbreath, Jr. by warrant from the Penn brothers dated 1738. The Galbreath Family appear on the tax lists of Chester County from 1718 through the 1720's when Lancaster County was still a part of Chester County.

The late Dr. Samuel Steman Haldeman was born at the mansion on August 12, 1912. Dr. Haldeman attained fame and world recognition from his many works in Philology, Phonography, Ethnology, Natural History and Archaeology.

His writings in all fields of science are literally innumerable.

An added attraction will be entertainment and light refreshments provided at Haldeman Mansion. Several stops on the tour will offer unusual crafts by craftsman who will either demonstrate or display their particular creative artistry. Crafts featured are weaving and spinning, candle-dipping, clock making with a display of museum piece clocks and a gun collection.

The proceeds from the tour will go for the benefit of the communities of both Bainbridge and Maytown, and also for the benefit of the Haldeman Preservation Society. Both are non-profit organizations.
