Businesswomen Week declared, Oct. 21-27

National Business Women's Week will be observed on Oct. 21 through 27. This annual event started 51 years ago, in 1928. It is in honor of all working women and their contributions to their communities and their nation.

Mayor Gingrich has signed a proclamation honoring working women in Mount Joy, Marietta, and Maytown. Present at the signing of the proclamation was Mary Jane Hoffer, director of public relations for the Mount Joy Business and Professional Women's Club.

Membership in the BPW is open to any business or professional woman. For information about the BPW, call Mrs. Gail Hoover at 653-1148.

PP&L asks for banning antinukes at hearing

PP&L has joined with the NRC in asking for the dismissal of Citizens Against Nuclear Power (CAND) from the proceedings in regard to the licensing of the Berwick nuclear power plant, partly owned by PP&L.

The dismissal of the anti-nuke group from the proceedings was demanded because CAND has refused to answer questions from other parties in the discussions, including both PP&L and the NRC. NRC regulations require that all parties in a hearing reply to each others' questions. CAND claims that the questions constitute harassment.

CAND was given an extension past the deadline to answer the questions, which regarded the bases for its opposition to licensing the Berwick plant, now 80% complete.

Brownies invested

An investiture service was held for new brownies of Troop 323 of Mount Joy last week at Glossbrenner U.M. Church.

The new members of the troop are Dawn Balassone, Kelly Lynn King, Suzanne Perkins, Donna Jean Wittel, and Morie Zielke. Leslie Hawkins and Debra Potts transferred into the troop at the same time.

The brownie story was presented for the girls.

Parents were invited to the investiture. Leaders of Troop 323 are Mrs. Trudy Houck and Mrs. Betty Bitzer.
