In addition to her work she is a den mother in the Cub Scouts, to which Michael belongs. She is active in the girl scouts, to which Kim belongs. Every year Judy helps to raise money for the girl scouts, participating in the annual telethon.

She is superintendent of the Sunday School at St. Luke's and teaches a Sunday School class. She is also an active member of the Christian Women's Association at the the church.

She is active in the PTA at Grandview School, although she no longer is an officer as she previously was.

She belongs to a number of car pools, taking her own and other people's children here and there to their various activities. "Every night I am dropping off or picking up kids," she says.

"I just like to do things," she says.

This year, as every year, she made her children's Halloween costumes, although Kim, who is becoming a handy seamstress, helps her mother more with the sewing. Judy makes a lot of Kim's clothes for her, and some for herself too.

In the summer she is an avid gardener, and her children are picking up this skill from her too. Michael raised a fine crop of marigolds this year.

Even the Funks' vacations are connected with their community activities. Judy is a counsellor at Kim's Girl Scout camp. Gene takes his family to Wildwood, N.J., every summer, where they can enjoy the ocean while he is attending a wrestling clinic.

How can Judy Funk manage to do all that she does?

She has a philosophy about work. She is skeptical when she hears other people say they don't have time to engage in community activities. "There is time, if you make it," she says.

How Judy gets time to engage in all her activities is part of her child-rearing. "Everybody has a job here," she says. "One child has to set the table. The other has to clean it off. The kids wash the dishes.

"They have to keep their rooms clean. Kim cleans the bathroom too, although she doesn't like to. Michael empties the waste baskets.

"They had to learn how to answer the phone, how to take messages. There are always a lot of calls for Daddy. They have to know where Daddy is, who is calling.

"The children learn to take responsibilities. With responsibilities come the privileges, like allowances or a new item like a football, when the dog bites a hole in the old football."

Actually, for the Funks, their very early breakfast is a more regular time for them to be together than supper. Since they have only one bathroom its use must be scheduled like a lot of their activities. Kim is first in the bathroom because she leaves first. Then, at breakfast there is usually time for family conversation, before they must all take off.

Judy is the last to leave and the first to return to their house on Wood Street in Mount Joy. She makes sure both in the morning and in the evening that everything is alright with her family.

So Judy Funk manages to do everything. People are always calling her to help with this and that: fund raising, cooking for a community supper, taking kids camping, manning a concession for the Pee Wee baseball league in which Michael plays, or selling at a cakes sale or bazaar.

"You'd be amazed at how much time you have—if everyone helps."

Mr. and Mrs. Clair L. Wagner

Clair Wagners celebrate fiftieth wedding anniversary, Sat., Nov. 3

Mr. and Mrs. Clair L. Wagner, 35 West Main Street, Mount Joy, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Saturday a week ago at Glossbrenner United Methodist Church in Mount Joy. Their son, Rev. Clair Wagner, Jr., is pastor at Glossbrenner.

The Wagners were married in Hagerstown, Md., November 5, 1929 by the Rev. J.S. Simon.

Since their marriage they have lived in Mount Joy. Mr. Wagner formerly managed the Joy Theater for 23 years. Then he worked at AMP for 20 years, retiring in 1976.

Wagner is a charter member of the Florin Fire Company and also a member of Friendship Fire Co. He bowls and is active with AMP retirees.

Before her marriage,

Mrs. Wagner was Beatrice Lehman of Elizabethtown.

The Wagners are members of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Mount Joy and the Mount Joy Leisure Club.

Besides their son, Rev. Wagner, they have a daughter, Jean, wife of Robert Rohrer, Manheim.

They have four grandsons and two great-grandchildren.

Marietta Ad Hoc Committee urges forming of human relations group

At the last meeting of the Marietta Borough Council a group of concerned citizens appeared to testify on social conflict in the community. To look into their concerns, the mayor appointed an ad hoc committee.

The ad hoc committee is recommending that that the borough council establish a human relations in the borough.

Members of the ad hoc committee are: Patrick Kenney, Jr., Kenneth Ross, Rosemary Patterson, Deborah Zeisloffe, and Jacklyn Madsen. The organization plans to operate independently of the borough council and the police department. The group will be soliciting ideas and suggestions from the people of Marietta.
