Library sponsors job workshop

The Lancaster County Library will sponsor a 9-session Job Development Workshop beginning Tuesday, February 26, 1980 from 6:30 pm to 9:00 pm. Ms. Meryl Baer, a local career counselor with Career Dynamics, will conduct the program.

Topics to be covered during the Job Development Workshop include self-assessment, career decision making and research, resumes, job-finding sources, interviewing techniques and other items which relate to a job search.

The Workshop will be limited to 25 men and women who may be unemployed and looking for a job or employed and dissatisfied with their present position. All participants will be involved in eight classroom sessions and one role playing job interview session with five persons.

ATTENDANCE IS LIMITED AND PRE-REGISTRATION IS REQUIRED. Interested persons should call the Lancaster County Library, 394-2651, to pre-register.

The program is free and open to the public. Funds for the Job Development Workshop have been provided from a federally funded career grant.

Lee Goldman to speak Feb. 9th

M.C. "Lee" Goldman, Executive Editor of Organic Gardening magazine, will speak at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, on Saturday, February 9 at 2 pm. His topic of discussion will be "Organic Gardening—One Solution to the Energy Crunch?"

As Managing Editor of Organic Gardening for 27 years, Goldman has devoted much of his time to researching and reporting the significant health aspects of the organic concept, as well as its importance to self sufficiency. Topics covered during these years have been: investigation of the nutritional value of naturally grown foods, variety breeding for higher vitamin value, biological pest control, optimum use of natural resources, land use reform, and safe energy production alternatives.

Goldman has been invited to Lancaster by the Susquehanna Valley Alliance to speak as part of their Energy Lecture Series. The meeting is open to the public without charge. Free pamphlets and literature about the organic concept will be available courtesy of the Rodale Press.

Farmers First opens drive-in branch office

The thirteenth branch of Farmers First Bank, at Ore Mine Road and Route #441, Marietta, opened for business Monday, January 28. It is an extension of the Marietta Bank and will be called Rivermoor Branch.

The drive-in features a twenty-four hour teller machine which enables a customer to check his balance, make withdrawals or loans, pay utility bills, deposit in Christmas or Vacation clubs, or transfer funds. This is the seventh Round-the-Clock-Teller put into service by the bank.

Groundbreaking for the new branch was held September 17, 1979. Robert S. Bolinger, president of Farmers First Bank, and John S. Hiestand, chairman of the Marietta Regional Board, turned over the first spade of earth.

Fields Company, Lancaster, served as the contractor for the building, with David H. Lynch as the architect.

The Marietta office, formerly known as First National Bank, was founded in 1863 with Abraham Lincoln's signature on the charter. Capital stock amounted to $60,000. Stockholders originally met in the former high school building, but the first bank structure was purchased from C. Stibgen soon after for $3000. The current structure was built in 1875.

The First National and the Exchange National Banks merged in 1960. Farmers First and First National merged in 1973. The bank is the oldest establishment in Lancaster County, the fourth oldest in Pennsylvania, and it holds the 25th charter given by the United States.

Hours for the new branch will be 11 am to 6 pm Monday through Thursday, at both the lobby and window, 11 am to 8 pm Friday, and 9 am to noon Saturday.

Lloyd Myers is assistant vice-president and manager of the Marietta office.
