Sally Cahalan, Wheatland director, honors docents

Sally Cahalan, Marietta, recently hosted a party celebrating the successful first season of the volunteer docent program at the Wheatland Center. Mrs. Cahalan is director of Wheatland.

Katherine Western, who contributed 180 hours to the program, and Jim Croft who volunteered 179 hours, were honored at the party for contributing the most docent hours.

The party was given to honor both the volunteer docents and the paid staff of Wheatland, President Buchanan's restored 1828 mansion house.

Wheatland's volunteer Docent Program is open to all residents of Lancaster and York Counties. Volunteers, both men and women, donate many important services to the historic mansion: they give tours of the shops on making 19th century style Christmas decorations, give slide lectures on Wheatland to school groups, take trips to other historic sites, participate in special super parties, and they write a monthly newsletter.

Orientation sessions for the 1980 season will be starting soon. For more details on joining the Docent Program, call the director, Sally Cahalan, at Wheatland, 392-8721.
