Alice and Carl Heilman look over some of the awards given at Carl's retirement

Carl Heilman, Mount Joy, retires after 50 years of math education

Carl Heilman, Mount Joy, recently retired after 20½ years with the State Department of Mathematics Education, and after more than 50 years in the field of mathematics and education.

He considers himself a very fortunate man. "I new when I started high school that I wanted to teach mathematics. I have done just that for the last 50½ years, and I have never regretted it," he says.

Being a mathematician, Mr. Heilman had a very special way of choosing his retirement date. "They told me last August, after fifty years in education, that for tax purposes I should work until the beginning of 1980.

"I was not sure just when I would retire, until one day the perfect date popped into my mind. That date was January 9, 1980."

Why this particular date? Mr. Heilman explains. "By adding the month and the year (1 and 80) you have the perfect square of the day (9). 81 is also a perfect fourth power of three," he grins.

His wife Alice smiles at this, also. "Numbers are so interesting," she says. "We have them taking on meanings everywhere we look. Carl and I were married July 11, or 7-11!"

The Heilmans met at Elizabethtown College when Alice was the librarian and Carl returned from a three year teaching stint at Syracuse University.

"Everyone kept telling me 'You just wait until Carl Heilman comes back.' I was so sick of hearing about Carl Heilman. But look what happened."

"Several people like to take credit for our getting together," added Carl. "But I think we did just fine on our own."

The Heilman's have lived in their present home in Mount Joy ever since they were married.

Carl Heilman began his teaching career with twelve years in New Jersey high schools. He then taught at Elizabethtown College for five, went to Syracuse for three and returned to Elizabethtown for ten more years. The last 20½ years were spent with the Department of Education.

At the time of his retirement he was given a luncheon by his fellow employees.

"I had to think while at my retirement luncheon how like a funeral it was. All of these people were saying nice things about me, but unlike a funeral, I got to hear them. I recommend a retirement luncheon over a funeral," he laughed.

His favorite momento of the event was the coat of arms that his fellow employees made for him. "It sums him up pretty well," says Alice.

The dedication reads "Heil Grosser Witzbold" (Heilman is a Pennsylvania Dutchman) which translates "Hail Great Punster".

It follows as below: He hobbles around crying 'who's for badmitten? 'It's much better for you than just sittin.'

We react by agreeing to go to the gym Where he shows us our athletic prowess is dim.

"I'll give you a break—let's change the game." But in racquetball our fate is the same.

Mount Joy Borough Council approves land tract re-zoning

At its February meeting Monday night, Mount Joy Borough Council approved the re-zoning of the tract of land on Lefever Road, which had been proposed last year as the site of the controversial development for low-income families: Creekside. The site was re-zoned from high density residential to medium density residential.

A large delegation of members of the Mount Joy Athletic Association appeared at Council. Spokesman Barry Etsell asked permission of Council to erect a new back-stop for the Pee Wee baseball league in the borough park. The association also plans to put up a snow fence to keep ground balls from rolling into a playground area. The fence will be temporary. Council granted permission to the association to erect the back-stop, which they volunteered to do at their own expense.

During Mayor Gingrich's report on police activities, officer Frank Aument mentioned that police have no authority to disperse congregating, loitering youth. The public safety committee of council will consider drafting an ordinance, enabling police to discourage loitering.

Borough manager Bruce Hamer announced that the state will be accepting bids for repairing Lefever Road on February 28.

The Mount Joy Jaycees have requested permission to hold their annual carnival May 23 and 24 in the street, possibly Market Street and South Delta.

Christ Charles, head of civil defense in Mount Joy gave an extended report on the steps he took, at Mayor Gingrich's request, during the T.M.I. crisis, including plans for possible evacuation of citizens. Charles said there was a need for a civil defense office, also for blankets for bedding victims in a public place during a possible catastrophe.

Council authorized renegotiation of a lease with Rollman Manufacturing Company for the parking lot on Appletree Alley behind Sloan's Pharmacy. Some of the parking there is subleased, some is metered for the public.

Approval was given for the purchase of stop signs and no parking signs.

Council also approved granting permission to the Merchants Association for hooding parking meters during their special sales days.

An ordinance was adopted which up-graded the pension fund for non-police employees of the borough.

June Whalen was appointed to the Board of Health.

A subdivision for Abram Weidman, Jr., at West Main Street and Apple Alley was approved.

Approval was given for accepting bids for re-surfacing a number of streets and [continued on page 15]
