

Fatso

Fatso, a moronic comedy about a chubby compulsive eater, merely goes a long way toward proving that an actress-turned-director (Anne Bancroft) can make just as bad a comedy as a stand-up commedienne-turned-director (Joan Rivers). Dom DeLuise almost breaks his comic funny bone trying to make this "Mel Brooks' reject" work. Anne Bancroft, who plays DeLuise's older sister, turns in the worst performance of her feeble career. Only Candice Azzara, who plays a Polish-Catholic girl whose appeal stems from a personality that falls between the twin stools of shyness and demureness, is captivating as the owner of an antique shop who captures DeLuise's oversized heart.

Fatso is currently playing at the Eric Twin II in Lancaster.
