Marietta Day May 17

by Linda Ross

Saturday, May 17, will be a big day in Marietta—rain or shine.

Clean-up and spruce-up activities are already underway in many parts of town, in anticipation of the many visitors expected from near and far.

Town-wide porch sale

The annual town-wide "Attic and Cellar Day" will take place on May 17; the same date as Historic Marietta Day. Residents are encouraged to display items they'd like to sell.

The Marietta Restoration Associates have offered to send around a truck at day's end to pick up unsold items residents would like to donate to the Children's Fair. If interested, call one of the following numbers:

 426-1893
 426-1733.

The occasion is Historic Marietta Day, a town-wide celebration spotlighting the borough's uniqueness and historic charm. Sponsored by the Marietta Restoration Associates, it is a day for all residents and businesses, in their own ways, to display pride in their town and to recognize its recent inclusion in the Federal Register of Historic Places.

The day-long celebration calls attention not only to the variety of well-preserved architecture in the town, but also to the variety of businesses the community boasts. Various shops and stores are planning special activities for the day.

A brochure currently available at many downtown businesses lists activities. More items have been added since the list went to press, so look for a detailed schedule of events in next week's Susquehanna Times.

The day should have something of interest for everyone. For the adults, in addition to business specials, there will be walking tours starting at the Infor-

With Mother's Day coming up this Sunday, May 11, we decided to ask some youngsters why they loved their mothers and what they planned to do for her for Mother's Day. We visited the Zion Lutheran Nursery School, Marietta, and the Little People Co-Op Nursery School, Mount Joy. The children named below go to one of these two schools.

When we asked the children why they loved their mothers we got these responses. Melissa Geesey loves her mother "because she lets me brush my teeth before going to bed." Carrie Biagio loves her mother because "she kisses me every night before I go to bed."

Chad Seifried says that his mother makes him a cake and Travis Stiffler told us that his mother ties his shoes and lets him help her bake chocolate chip and pumpkin cookies.

"When I get sick Mother takes care of me," said Marci Cain. Sarah Bromer told us that "our mothers love us. That's why we love her and tell her on Mother's Day."

The children had many ideas for showing Mother how they love her. "I'm going to get her another new oven glove," said Alex Roberts. Morgan Moran will give her mother flowers, Stacey Johnston plans to give her mother a card, and Anthony and Andrew Musser plan to take their mother out for dinner.

Shane Gillham will help his mother wash the dishes and Chad Seifried will "take the cushions off the coach so she can clean."

And, finally, Barbie Kettering had a very good suggestion. "I give grandmother a present. Grandmothers are our mother's mother."

We at the Susquehanna Times wish all mothers a happy Mother's Day.
