Mount Joy police getting 'intoxilizer'

The Mount Joy Borough Council gave its approval Monday night to the acquisition by the police department of a new intoxicilizer, paid for by federal money, $4368. The federal money, $4368. The new intoxicilizer will provide a back-up to the present breathalyzer owned by the department, which can be used as an educational device. Both devices are used to determine the degree of a person's intoxication.

Council also, by a majority vote, approved the purchase of a new siren, lights, and radio for a police car. Recently the police department acquired a VW Rabbit. Cost of the new equipment will exceed $1300.

Approval was given to hiring three part-time police officers: Richard Allan Gible, William Michael Blake, and Charles M. Kraus.

Placing two more street lights on Union School Road, as recommended by PP&L, was approved by the Council. Cost of the new lights will be $150 per year.

Ralph B. Albert of 471 Donegal Springs Road was chosen by Council to replace Virginia Horst, who resigned, to take her place on Council, until her term would have expired in 1981.

Two alleys were abandoned: Lemon Street from Main Street to Pink Alley and an unnamed alley between 459 and 461 Donegal Springs Road. Both alleys extend about 180 feet.

Council voted to paint the west side of the town library, which faces Kenny Smith's new sporting goods store.

Upon a motion made by Councilman Ricedorf, the Council voted to have rules and regulations drawn up for the personnel of the police department.
