"Ragtime and All That Jazz" at the Columbia Little Theater

The Columbia Little Theater will present RAGTIME AND ALL THAT JAZZ, performed by the Lovelace Theater.

A Pittsburgh based company, the longest running professional puppet and mask company in the United States, will be bringing a special experience in the art of puppetry to Columbia.

For two performances only, on Saturday, June 28 at 11AM. and 2PM., there will be a puppet revue that traces the history of American jazz that will spill out over the Columbia stage to delight the audience. From Classic ragtime style of Scott Joplin to the smooth melodies of more contemporary jazz artists, the performers use a wide variety of puppet forms to please the young and the not so young. Rod puppets, lollipop puppets, life-sized figures, and even human actors move through a visually exciting fabric of short dramatic vignettes.

According to Margo Lovelace, founder and director of the company, "something astonishing happens when you create good theater with puppets...and that is what we want to do, astonish our audiences. Blending the precise mix of unusual puppet forms, human actors and fascinating music yields the kind of theater we love best—where puppets and actors can perform virtually anything with ease."

Introducing such characters as Mr. Bojangles, a tap dancing rod puppet; an instant elephant that grows from nothing to a full-sized

"jumbo"; an eerie mime puppet who sets the stage for the rest of this fast-moving show, "RAGTIME AND ALL THAT JAZZ" is sometimes funny, sometimes poignant, sometimes silly, but always a fascinating example of what the Lovelace Theater can be for everyone.

For information on tickets

call 684-2273 and leave your name and number. Someone from the staff will return your call. "RAGTIME AND ALL THAT JAZZ" will be at the State Theater, Locust St., Columbia, PA., June 28th, 11 AM. and 2PM.

The company is appearing in part through a grant from TAP (Theater Association of Pennsylvania).
