Dr. Predicto, the numbers magician, came up a bit short last week, calling only eight of the 12 Lancaster-Lebanon football games correctly.

Manheim Township upset Cedar Crest 9-0, Warwick lost to Manheim Central 26-8, Lebanon Catholic defeated Norlebc 12-3, and Annville-Cleona shut out L-S 7-0.

Looking ahead to this weekends schedule, Predicto never hesitates before calling Donegal over Lampeter-Strasburg 14-7.

Donegal JV football boasts 2-1 record

Donegal's junior varsity football team, with every member of the team playing for part of the game, has compiled a 2-1 record.

The team started the season by defeating Elizabethtown 26-6. The team next loss at the hands of the Solanco Mules 9-0. It was a close game, and three points came off a 35 yard field goal, which, according to Coach John Felix, is something rarely seen in JV football.

The team defeated ELCO 13-12. "We were up 13-0 at the half," says Felix, "but they came back with two touchdowns."

The JV game against Garden Spot scheduled for Monday night was called off.

The Donegal team, made up primarily of sophomores and some juniors, has only given up a little over one touch down per game. This is due to the strong defense, says Felix, who is in his second year of coaching at Donegal.

Felix sites Sandy Finn, a

165 pound middle line-backer, as the key defenseman on the team.

Bill Miller, with a pretty good passing game, plays quarterback. Other outstanding offensive players are halfbacks Shawn Maxwell and Scott Snyder.

Felix is quick to add that their are no real outstanding individuals, and that every game is a complete team effort. "We have been able to win because we can lose one or two players and not really damage the ability of the team. The results come from the entire team."

Felix describes JV ball as a learning experience for his players, and to learn the team members must play. "I feel it is important to have everyone out there playing," he says.

The team's next meeting will be at home against Lampeter-Strasburg. The JV team will also face Annville-Cleona, Norlebc and Cocalico before the end of the season.

Ben Thompson writes Ayatollah Khomeini

Printed below is the eleventh in a series of letters written to Ayatollah Khomeini by Ben Thompson, 212 North Jones Street, Marietta.

October 1, 1980

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini
Qum, Iran

Dear Mr. Khomeini,

Today finds the world at the beginning of several cycles. The last quarter of 1980 began today. The moon is moving from its last quarter toward a new phase. In two days my wife and I will begin our 32nd year of marriage. Any beginning presumes an end of something, but as the historian says, "the past is prologue." Yesterday's experiences are lessons learned, but the events are history. Like the historian, I prefer to concentrate my energies on today and tomorrow. Forget the past, my friend. You can never change it nor recover it, for it is now inscribed in the wind.

You have been deeply hurt by the past, Mr. Khomeini, and you are now jeopardizing world peace in your fanatical pursuit for revenge. What right have you to stir up the world like a witch's brew and release the evils once contained in Pandora's Box? Enough evil got out when it was opened the first time. It is easy enough for an old man of eighty years to say that "war is a very good thing." It is not so easy for those who do the fighting and the dying. The one who counts the cadence has a much easier job than the slaves who man the oars. History shows that many a man has marched off to war to the drum beat of a madman, and died for an evil cause. Make no such pronouncements for me, Mr. Khomeini. War is not a good thing. War is evil, per-
