If a reasonable number of books are not returned within the next month, the "honor system" for checking out books, used only for the convenience of story-hour mothers, will be discontinued and library cards will be required.

Acting council president John Reuter appointed a committee to investigate ordinance enforcement procedures. This committee was prompted by a resident's complaint that he had been prosecuted for violating the borough's weed ordinance, but that he had never received the violation notice for not cutting his grass.

Councilmen Harold McKain, Martha Breckline, Larry Gillham, Paul Sload and John Reuter will make up the special committee.

Council agreed to file preliminary applications for additional community block grants for Phase 3 of reconstruction of storm sewers and streets in the borough. Council did not disclose how much money the borough is seeking. Under the program, Front and South Gay streets would get new storm sewers and be reconstructed.

Mayor J.R. Flanagan designated Thursday, October 30, from 7 to 9 pm as "Trick or Treat" night for children 12 years of age and under.

Four borough zoning hearings were held in the past month.

Requests for a new structure at 305 Essex Street and for the conversion of a structure on East Front St., into a single dwelling by the Congregation Bible Church were granted.

The zoning board denied requests for a garage and for changing the zoning at Gay and Market Streets from residential to commercial.

On Thursday, October 9, John E. Matoney, Mount Joy RD#1, was invited to officially greet Rosalynn Carter as she arrived at the Harrisburg Airport for a short visit in the central Pennsylvania area. Matoney was one of about fifty persons in the receiving line.

me this morning was 'give my love to the first lady.'"

Matoney did this, and Mrs. Carter replied, "Tell Betty I said thanks."

Matoney stated that it was a pleasure and privilege to meet the president's wife. "She is a wonderful person and a great first lady."

In her press conference, Mrs. Carter said that Pennsylvania is a key state in the presidential election, and although the polls indicate a race too close to call, she feels confident that Pennsylvania will go Democratic on November 4.

When questioned about his being in the receiving line when he is not a V.I.P., Matoney said, "That's why the Democratic party is known as the party of the little guys."
