which was built in the early 1800's, is constructed of logs and includes four bedrooms, a living room and a dining room. A newer section houses the master bedroom, bath, laundry and family-kitchen room. Period pieces and tastefully arranged crafts created by Marion Brenneman are found throughout the house. Included in this stop will be demonstrations of quilting, bargello, applebutter making and bread baking.

The Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ginder home, opposite the Donegal Presbyterian Church, Mount Joy R.D.#1, was originally a schoolhouse built on land deeded by William Penn's sons. Exposed log walls in the living room show the 1790 construction of the earliest section of the house. Three additions were built over the years, and the Ginders have furnished each room in a matching era. The master bedroom contains Victorian furnishings. Decorating the room are a doll collection, a Gone with the Wind lamp, a glass cup and saucer rack doubling as a hat stand, and a Weller umbrella stand showing off an arrangement of pampus grass and German statues. Marble topped bureaus and a brass bed complete the furnishings. Son Brian's room, located over the kitchen, was built circa 1930. Brian collects World War I and II memorabilia. Oil paintings hung throughout the dwelling are by Mrs. Ginder's mother, Lois Fida, as were the wreaths decorating the home.

The Assumption B.V.M. Church, Union School Road, Mount Joy. Assumption B.V.M. Catholic Church was established on October 12, 1879, at the intersection of New Haven and David Streets, now the site of the Friendship Fire Company. The church building was completely renovated following a 1920 fire. Ground-breaking for the new structure took place on October 25, 1978, and the first Mass celebrated in the new building was the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary on August 15, 1979. Bishop Joseph Daley presided at the dedication ceremonies which took place October 14, 1979, 100 years after the Catholic community was established in Mount Joy. Refreshments will be served at this stop.

Mount Joy Area Historical Society, Fairview Street, Mount Joy. This building, erected in 1913, was formerly the Macedonia Africa Methodist Episcopal Church. Used by the congregation until June, 1973, it was purchased by the Historical Society to provide a meeting hall, library for historical materials, and an office for the Society. Improvements were made to the building as funds and volunteer labor became available. Various collections of "Old Mount Joy" memorabilia presented to the Historical Society by members of the Society are on display.

Friendship Fire Company #1, 111 New Haven Street, Mount Joy. This sparkling new modern fire house was dedicated on August 10, 1980, after a "ten year plan" to update the apparatus of the department and engine house facilities was begun in the fall of 1970. Two new engines were purchased and paid in full by mid-1975, and the ambulance was also placed in service at that time. The department began building plans in June, 1975, and actual construction got underway in October, 1979. Fire and ambulance operations moved to the building on June 31, 1980. Tour visitors will be able to see the fire engines and ambulances on the first floor, offices and large rooms on the second floor, and the social room with its modern kitchen on the lower level.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Duval, R.D.#3,

Mount Joy. The stone farmhouse of Paul and Virginia Duval is an example of excellent renovation and preservation. Situated on 70 acres of fertile fields and woodland, this handsome dwelling commands a panoramic view of its countryside. Renovations conform to the original structure of the house which was built in the 1700's. The early stone section is decorated with 18th century furnishings. Frame additions have been remodeled and decorated with contemporary furnishings to reflect a relaxed and casual mode of life. Accessibility from one area of the house to another is a strong architectural feature of the home. Repointed exterior and interior stone walls, stripped of plaster, are impressive features that have been preserved. All renovations were made with materials found in the house or other buildings on the property.

Home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Musser, 350 South Delta Street, Mount Joy. This lovely home, owned by the Mussers, was originally a one-story house with a flat roof. It was also known as the "mistake house" since the contractor built in on the wrong lot. Carol and Don Musser have redecorated each room, and they have torn out walls, put in new walls, and added a second floor during their 14-year stay. The couple has "before and after" pictures to show. The downstairs family room contains a lovely free-standing wood burning stove which gives the family many cozy hours of pleasure during the cold winter months.

The Leader Center Has Added A New Capability To Its Services.

The new Leader Personal Care Center in Elizabethtown offers a comfortable, caring home for independently mobile adults who cherish their independence but who need a bit of assistance with the tasks of daily living.

While residents of the Leader Personal Care Center do not need hospital or nursing home care, they do require some help or supervision in personal care or in coping with the complications of daily life.

The Leader Personal Care Center in Elizabethtown provides a variety of personal care services to enrich a resident's life. For instance:

Tasty, Nutritious Meals

Under supervision of a dietician, we serve three tasty meals each day to residents.

Personal Care

Our trained Residential Assistants and professional beauticians shampoo and help groom hair, help with bathing, shaving, oral hygiene, dressing, and care of clothing.

Health Services

Our Residential Assistants remind residents to take whatever medications have been prescribed by their physicians for self-administration. If required, a resident may receive up to one hour per day of nursing care at no extra charge. In emergencies our staff is trained to get proper medical assistance.

Enriched Daily Living

Our Residential Assistants encourage and assist residents in shopping and in social activities, in keeping and caring for personal possessions; they help residents with transportation, in making or keeping appointments, or with whatever tasks of daily living are too difficult to do alone.

Comfortable, Attractive Surroundings

Residents enjoy gracious rooms, a broad porch, and beautifully landscaped grounds. We encourage residents to entertain their friends and relatives.
