General Trade Conditions. New York (Special) .- R. G. Dun &

Co.'s weekly review of trade says: General business continues its even course with all the leading industries well employed and with confidence expressed on every hand. Bountiful crops of wheat seem assured and the damage to corn, while considerable in some directions, does not promise to be sufficiently general or serious to at all impede the progress of the country. Labor troubles are in process of settlement and speculators have been responsible for most of the unrest which has been reflected in the markets. Textile lines have settled in a steady position that promises more lasting prosperity than if prices had been forced higher or sensational activity had followed the altered attitude of buyers. Grain crops this season are occasioning much uneasiness among speculators owing to the extremely emplicated sit-uation. Owing to latest official and unofficial prognostications there is reason to anticipate the heaviest wheat yield ever harvested, and making the customary allowances for domestic consumption, even with the small supplies on hand when the year opened, there appears available for export about 50 per cent, more than went abroad in the year of greatest shipments. Yet prices are far above the low record and vigorous rallies follow each decline. Extensive needs abroad continue, the movement from Atlantic ports for the week amounting to 3,208,634 bushels, against 2,198,443 a year ago, and Western re-ceipts were 4,579,378 bushels, against 2,-618,677 last year. Corn exhibited remarkable strength, drought and heat since July I giving reason to expect less than the official report, which indicated more than two billion bushels. This cereal is now at an exceptionally high point and estimates of 200,000,000 bushels for export are too high, as foreigners will not buy freely at the enhanced Failures for the week numbered 208 in the United States, against 196 last year.

Talk had turned upon the old-time circus. The man with the gray hairs in his beard and whose front teeth were unmistakably false, had only smiled at some of the other stories.

"That reminds me," he said finally,
"how I once paid $36 and lay in bed for three days, living on liquid diet, in order to see about half of three cheap acts in one of those old one-ring circuses.

"I was a big, overgrown boy at the time. I lived in a small town twelve miles off a railroad, and when a small circus billed the town and finally put up its tent and side show on the vacant lots next to our house, I didn't like to dig up the price. Especially I didn't like it when I noticed that the shed roof of our coal-house slanted upward toward the open space just under the edge of the canvas roof of the main tent.

'So, while the ticket agent was busy, I sprawled out on the sloping roof, face down, with my head just over the edge of the coal shed, looking over the heads of the spectators inside the tent and into the tinsel glories of the ring.

'And, incidentally, I was exactly in that position when a circus roustabout saw me and lifted me off the roof with a hunk of coal that knocked out six as good teeth as ever a man stuck into a Ben Davis apple.

"And I've never been to a circus since.

A Real Funny Story.

A Real Funny Story.

Old Tim Linkins, the barber of Wabash Avenue, Chicago, is a great student of proverbial philosophy, and he sometimes entertains his customers, in the interval of a "scrape" or "haircut," by his apt applications of the well-known proverbs of the past to the conditions or requirements of the present. His regular customers know his strong point, and many a man who apparently goes in for a shave, is really in search of a rest in a cosy chair, and really in search of a rest in a cosy chair, and has a desire to hear "Tim" hold forth pro-verbially. One day last week a stranger came verblany. One day last week a stranger came in for a shave, and as he stretched himself wearily in the chair, Tim prepared to lather him. The man incidently remarked that he had intended coming in earlier in the day but had been prevented. "Well, it's better late had been prevented. "Well, it's bett than never," said Tim, smilingly. "Y ways," replied the stranger, slowly. than never," said Tim, smilingly. Not always," replied the stranger, slowly. "How about losing your pocketbook? I never lost one until yesterday—never did, but I would sooner have kept it. Now, why was it better for me to lose it late than not at all?" Tim acknowledged that he was wrong and the man continued: "Don't know what I would have done in my predicament, only an old acquaintance of mine on the Lake front let me have twenty to go on with." "Ah," chipped in tance of mine on the Lake front let me have twenty to go on with." "Ah," chipped in Tim, "that was good! A friend in need is a friend indeed." "No, he isn't," snapped the man who was being shaved. "There you're dead wrong again. How can a friend in need be a friend indeed? I have a good many friends who are always in need and they are a nuisance to me. Always on the borrow." Tim thought the problem over in his mind and reluctantly admitted that the man was right. He had almost made up his mind not to speak again mitted that the man was right. He had almost made up his mind not to speak again when the stranger continued, "Yes sir, they are nuisances. Why, one of them fellows has been calling on me for the past year and threatens to get even with me some way if I do not loan him fifty dollars. He threatens me at every visit." "Oh, I wouldn't mind that," replied Tim unconsciously, "you know the old adage 'A barking dog never bites." "There you are again," said the "shavee" as he wiped a little lather from the corner of his mouth. "Say, what do you know about dogs, anyway, that you talk in such a silly strain? Have you ever ventured to go too close to a barking dog,—and if you did, what did he do to you? Did you ever know a barking dog that didn't bite if he got the chance? Tim said he couldn't exactly call to mind any canine acquaintance that strictly fulfilled the canine acquaintance that strictly fulfilled the claim in the proverb, and there was a silence for a few minutes while his razor was gliding over the man's face. Then the barber smiled to himself as he bethought him of a good joke. "I suppose," he said, as he applied the bay rum, "I suppose you don't believe in the barbers' proverb at all?" "What's that?" asked the stranger, rising. "Two heads are better than one," answered Tim. "Of course you can understand why they are, in my business but I know you would like to say they would be bad for a man with the headache or-'Nothing of the kind," put in the other, smil ing. "One of your proverbs, at least, is right,

I happen to know that two heads are better than one." "Then you don't object to that old adage?" "Not at all. It is dead right. And I would thank you very much if you have any stray Lion heads at hand—those taken from the Lion Coffee wrappers. My wife is collecting them and she is about six shy of the number required to get a Lady's Gold Watch. You see in this case "two heads are better than one, and twenty are better than ten." "Just so," added Tim, cheerfully, "but you see, my wife is doing the same thing, and expects a premium in a few weeks. So to her also, two heads are better than one." "Well, in that case," said the stranger, as he paid Tim for the shave and prepared to depart, "you had better tell your wife to do the same as mine is doing. Save up the Lion heads until after September 1st next, when the new Premium List is issued. Then if she sends them to the Woolson Spice Co., Toledo, Ohio, the can have here here because the control of the control she can have her pick of some very choice
