Post Office Robbed.
An attempt was made to rob the post office in this place on Tuesday night which proved very successful in entering the building but not so in securing plunder. It is supposed the robbers first entered the wash house at the residence of Peter Kraybill, when they secured a pair of pincers, some apples, a pair of stockings and a key which exactly fit and unlocked the side door at the post office. All the drawers in the building were "touched" and all they secured for their trouble was sixty cents that Postmaster Widman had left in the money drawer as change for the following day. As far as is known not even a "tetter" was disturbed. Abram Weaver who resides next door, happened to close a shutter at his residence which frightened the raiders off. In the morning the door was open and many burned matches were found lying on the floor. It is supposed that the parties were acquainted with the place or they would not have gone to Mr. Kraybill's for a key.

Here's a Conversation.
Jones—Yes, Maria, the infatuation shown by you women for foreign titles is appalling, and it allowed to go unchecked may sap the foundations of the republic. No, I won't be home for dinner; I'm going to be installed grand worshipful sir knight commander of the Eminent Nobles of Thingumbob.—Judge.
Gone Up the Flame.
Bill—What's become of your friend who kept the restaurant?
Jill—Oh, he got tired paying coal bills and he tried to economize by burning kerosene oil.
"Failed, I suppose?"
"Well, he's gone up, all right."—Yonkers Statesman.
The Old Story.
"I wonder what Eve said when she found she had to leave the Garden of Eden," said Mr. Grumpin's wife.
"It was just about what all women say when they are starting on a journey. She complained that she didn't have a thing to wear."—Washington Star.
Throwing Good After Bad.
"This hunting up the makers of counterfeit money costs a good many thousand dollars a year," said the secret service man.
"Well, that's what you'd call throwing good money after bad, wouldn't you?" said the taxpayer.—Yonkers Statesman.
Her Idea of It.
He (willing but bashful)—Slow but sure is my motto.
She (almost discouraged)—Well, you could not have selected a more appropriate one. You are slow enough, that's sure.—Chicago Daily News.
Misgivings.
"That was a very lucid document you prepared," said the friend.
"Yes," answered the statesman, dubiously. "I made it so lucid that I am afraid the public will fail to regard it as able and profound."—Washington Star.
Not Hard to Satisfy.
"Some men are easily satisfied," remarked the Observer of Events and Things. "There is the clockmaker; for instance; he never gets any extra pay, and yet every day he works overtime."—Yonkers Statesman.
Too Quick.
Hobb—If you ever make any money in Wall street, never tell your wife.
Nobb—Why not?
Hobb—She'll spend it for you before you've had a chance to lose it yourself.—Judge.
The Long and Short of It.
"I wonder why it takes pay day so long to come around?"
"It only seems long when you're short, and the shorter you are the longer it seems."—Philadelphia Press.
Cause for Congratulation.
Drummer—Any mail for me—John H. Klawback?
Pettyville Postmaster—None.
Drummer—Good! The firm hasn't fired me yet!—Puck.

IN DISTANT CITIES.
Higsberg, Prussia, has an amber room valued at 305,000 marks.
There is a cafe which has been opened day and night for 150 years.
New Zealand has in its eideweiss a cant differing but slightly from the famous Swiss variety.
In 6 per cent. of the north Italian and 18 per cent. of the south Italian villages the streets are still used as sewers.
According to the anthropologist, Alfredo Nigatore, a north Italian differs less from a German than he does from a Sicilian.
Distilling seems to be profitable in Russia. A Moscow firm, "Widow Popova," has distributed $1,200,000 rubles as dividends for the year 1900 on a capital of 500,000 rubles.
The street-car conductors in Wiesbaden are subject to fines for breach of regulations. For driving too fast a fine of 30 pfennigs (5 cents); for talking to other employees, 50 pfennigs (11 cents) and for not waiting for trailer connection 20 pfennigs (4 cents). Notwithstanding these fines the Wiesbaden street-car service leaves much to be desired.
Taxation in Norway is becoming oppressive, and living expensive in proportion. An example will illustrate this: Two banks having the same capital and doing about the same amount of business pay taxes at the rate of 6,000 and 65,000 kroner ($1,440 and $15,740) per annum respectively. The former of these two institutions is in central Europe, the latter in Norway.
HOT WEATHER SENSE.
Walk slowly.
Carry a sun umbrella if it adds to your comfort.
Follow the shady side of the street where possible.
Don't eat heartily of meats—it is like putting coal in the furnace.
Don't hurry. There is more "heating up" in three minutes of haste than in an hour of leisurely proceeding.
Cut the acquaintance of the thermometer. Discourage talk about the weather, and if you must think of it—think of Peary!
In torrid weather wear clothing suitable to a torrid climate—as light and as little as the conventions and circumstances will permit.
Free perspiration seldom hurts anyone. The pores are nature's safety valves. It is "dry heat" or the sudden checking of the sweat that is dangerous.
Don't drink "cool" alcoholic beverages under the idea that they will reduce your temperature or that of the atmosphere. You are simply adding fuel to the fire. Paradoxical though it may sound, hot drinks are in all other more cooling than cold drinks.

Checking to a Good Thing.
"My daughter," said the father of the beautiful girl, "young Milvyns will very likely propose to-night, and—"
"Father," she cried, "I cannot marry him."
"No? Well, put him off for a week. I want to borrow another thousand from him."—Philadelphia Record.

Among the opinions filed by the court last Saturday, is the following: H. H. Yonkers vs. the Pennsylvania railroad company, rule for new trial, rule discharged. Yonkers sued the Pennsylvania railroad company for $10,000 damages for injuries received by being struck by a train at Elizabethtown. The jury awarded him $750. One of the reasons assigned for a new trial was that one of the jurors was an employee of the Pennsylvania railroad company.
