such a one as can be re only by the rich. His table by the rich. His table of head with abundance, not only with abunds of do-mestic production. If of imported food stuffs. For example, his family con-sumes annually 1250 pounds of wheat flour, and coo pounds of oat and corn meal, 50 pounds of meat, about two pounds per day; 750 pounds of potatoes, too pounds of butter, and 300 pounds of sugar. He is the greatest coffee drinker on earth, one pound per week being required for the family's consumption. Of ten, however, he uses little, five pounds per year sufficing for his re ds. His table costs him $16 per month. He eats three meals per day, taking his dinner at noon. He retires between nine and ten at night and rises at six in the morning.

Sollloquies in the Shade.

When a man flatters himsef that he knows a woman, he-flatters himself. The most effective argument a charming woman can use to a man is an appealing "Don't you think so?"

When a girl says emphatically that she won't, it is morally certain that she will; when she says she will, will she? The greatest lack of logic is displayed by the man who reasons logically with a woman.

The girl who judges a man from the curl of his mustache does not deserve much sympathy when she is disillusioned.

The gaudy tinsel of admiration is surer bait for woman than the gold of devout love.

Man loves to be praised for his intuition, woman for her logic. As a rule, neither possesses either.

It is always a matter of surprise that others should take their worries so much to heart; also that they make so light of ours.

Washington (Special). President William McKinley rests in hi ast sleep at the White House Monday ght. He was borne there in sorrow.

All of grief that solemn cerer ony can show, all that civil and military pageantry can do to honor, will be encompassed in the services at the capital of the nation.

Simple and solemn was the procession from the railroad station to the House. Silent save for sobbing was the multitude of people standing with uncovered heads as the cortege, escorted by a guard of honor and military, passed up Pennsylvania avenue.

Scarcely less in numbers was the crowd than that which had cheered President McKinley when he drove up the same avenue to the White House March 4 last after taking the oath of office for the second time as President of the United States. Now the people were dumb, and so silent was the city that it all semed in the uncertain light like a vision unreal. In the East Room of the White House, which has been the scene of many a joyous assemblage, a guard of honor watched alone with the dead. Se-cluded in her sorrow, Mrs. McKinley was tenderly cared for by those closest to her.

The body of the murdered President reached Washington at 8.38 p.m. It was received at the railroad station by an escort that represented every branch of the army and navy and was borne to the White House along streets crowded close with thousands of people. In its pres-ence stillness prevailed, broken only by the clatter of horses' hoofs and the rattle of sabers.

Faiters for a Moment With Emotion, and Ther ITAL. in Firm Tones, Accepts the Honor.

Buffalo, N. Y. (Special) .- Theodore Roosevelt, at 3.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, in the library of the residence of Ansley Wilcox, at Buffalo, took the constitutional oath as President of the United States. Elihu Root, Secretary of War, acting in behalf of the Cabinet of the late President, in a voice tremulous with grief, formally requested Mr. Roosevelt to take the oath. The new President, in a voice that at first faltered from emotion, said: "I shall take the oath at once in accordance with your request, and in this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue unbroken without variance the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country.

Judge John R. Hazel, of the United States Court, administered the oath. Following the ceremony President Roosevelt shook hands with the Cabinet officers and all others in the room. A brief conference between the President and Cabinet officers followed, during which he requested the members of the Cabinet who were present-Secretaries Root, Long and Wilson and Postmaster-General Smith-to remain in office, at least for the present. They assured him that they would, and Presi-dent Roosevelt subsequently stated that he had also received similar assurances from the absent members of the Cabinet.

Immediately upon assuming his new office, President Roosevelt issued the following proclamation, setting aside Thursday as a day of prayer and mourning throughout the land:

By the President of the United States of America: A Proclamation:

A terrible bereavement has befallen our people. The President of the United States has been struck down; a crime committed not only against the Chief Magistrate, but against every law-abiding and liberty-loving citizen. President McKinley crowned a life of largest love for his fellow-men, of most earnest endeavor for their welfare, by a death of Christian iortitude; and both the way in which he lived his life and the way in which, in the supreme hour of trial, he met his death, will remain forever a precious heritage of our peo-

It is meet that we as a nation express our abiding love and reverence for his life, our deep sorrow for his untimely death.

Now, therefore, I. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United

The Preacher's Lack.

'In a church not a thousand miles from Milwaukee a railroad conductor attended services recently. It was the first time he had ever been seen in a church and his presence caused quite a stir. The preacher preached his sermon, and then, reluctant to lose the opportunity to make a lasting impression. he traveled over the same ground in language more impressive and spun his liscourse out into unwarranted length.

When the service ended one of my dea-that is, one of the deacons of the church-waited for the railroader and, accosting him, inquired: 'How did you like the sermon?'

''It was all right.' 'You enjoyed it, did you?'

"Yes, it was a very good sermon." "I suppose we shall have the pleas-several officers of the army and a committee representing Buffalo, which consisted of Mayor Conrad Diehl, John G. Milburn, John N. Seatherd, Harry Hamlin and Carleton Sprague. Mrs. McKinley and the other ladies of the party were driven unostentatiously out Sixth street and away from the crowd. Guarded by details from the military arms of the Government, members of the Loyal Legion and the Grand Army of the Republic, and in charge of commissioned officers of the army and navy, the vigil of the dead began at 10 p. m. One hour later the lights were all turned low throughout the Mansion and quiet fell over the grounds and buildings.

Five thousand persons who had gathered in front of the great gates in the early part of the evening quickly dispersed, the distinguished persons who came from Buffalo with the party retired for the night, the gates swung closed and the special guard of policemen paced the walks and driveways.

FEARS FOR MRS. McKINLEY

When the Nerve Tension is Over, There Are Apprehensions of Serious Collapse.

Washington (Special) .- Mrs. McKinley has stood the strain of the trying ordeal following the death of her husband better than was expected and her physician, Dr. Rixey, is encouraged to believe that she will go through the state ceremonial without collapse.

A half hour which was spent beside the coffin on the train was followed by a period of depression, but Dr. Rixey induced her to sleep in the afternoon.

Their dread is for the future, when the nerve tension of the present ordeal is over and when the widow is back alone in the old house at Canton, with the flood of reflection and realization that must come upon her then.

President Left Will.

Buffalo (Special) .- President McKinley has left a will.

The instrument was executed some time before the shooting, and at no time during his final sufferings was there any wish or occasion to revise it or to frame a codicil. It leaves the bulk of his property to Mrs. McKinley. How much the estate is worth cannot be stated with exactness by those most familiar with the late President's business affairs, but it is believed to be a goodly sum, although not amounting to a large fortune.

Death Mask Taken.

Buffalo (Special) .- A death mask of the President's face was made by Eduard L. A. Pausch, of Hartford, Conn. Mr. Pausch has in recent years modeled the features of many of the distinguished men who have died in this country. The mask is a faithful reproduction of the late President McKinley's features.

JOHN HAY. Secretary of State.

Life of President Roosevelt.

Theodore Roosevelt, who succeeds as head of the nation, is a member of an old Dutch family which was founded in this country about the middle of the seventeenth century by Klaas Marten-sen Roosevelt. He was born in New York city on October 7, 1858, and was prepared for Harvard by private tutors. Governor Roosevelt's mother was a Georgian. One of his uncles was an admiral in the Confederate service and the other was a midshipman, who fired the last gun from the Confederate warship Alabama just before she went down, having been sunk by the Kearsarge off Cherbourg, France. He was prominent in college athletics, and was one of the editors of the undergraduate journal, the Advocate. A year of foreign travel followed his graduation, in 1880, and almost immediately thereafter he entered upon a public career. His first position was that of membership in the lower branch of the New York Legislature, in which he sat during the sessions of 1882 and the two iollowing The bent of his mind politically years. was developed at this early stage by his introduction of the first civil service bill in the Legislature, which became a law in 1883.

He was an indepedent candidate for mayor of New York city in 1886, with a Republican indorsement, but was not elected. President Harrison appointed him a member of the Civil Service Commission in May, 1889, and he served as a member of the board and its president for six years, displaying dur-ing the whole of that period a determined purpose to rigidly and honestly enforce the law. In May, 1895, he re-signed to become president of the Board of Police Commissioners of New York city, in which position he dis-played equal fidelity and fearlessness. On the inauguration of President Mc-Kinley, in 1897, Mr. Roosevelt resign-ed from the Policve Board to become Assistant Accretary of the Navy, in which position he served until the out-break of hostilities with Spain, and to his energy and foresight have been justly ascribed the complete readiness of the naval branch of the service to eater upon that brief and brilliant con-test.
